Ex-D.C. Woman Medic a Kidnaper

FBI Traps Her With Money; Girl Victim Saved

Santa Fe Physician Confesses Plot; Sought $20,000 To Clear Debts

A prominent woman doctor, who was a staff member of St. Elizabeths Hospital here from 1932 to 1937, was held in Santa Fe, N. Mex., yesterday for the kidnaping of a 9-year-old girl who was drugged and kept prisoner in an abandoned ranch house for 30 hours.

The United Press reported from Santa Fe that 30 FBI agents, State and city police rescued the incoherent girl and trapped Dr. Nancy D. Campbell, 43, Saturday night as she reached for ransom money. The ransom was left at the gates of the Allen Stamm estate outside Santa Fe. The kidnaper demanded $20,000.

A Brilliant Obstetrician

In Santa Fe, friends described Dr. Campbell as one of the most brilliant woman obstetricians in the country. St. Elizabeths officials said she joined the hospital staff after completing her internship elsewhere. She remained at the hospital until April, 1937, when she transferred to the Indian Service.

Dr. Winfred Overholster, superintendent of St. Elizabeths, who came to the hospital a few months after Dr. Campbell left, said some staff members recalled that Dr. Campbell was a "quite superior girl."

Dr. Campbell, born in San Francisco, was graduated from Yale Medical School in 1931. She went to Santa Fe as a United States Indian Service physician, entering private practice about seven years later.

Needed Money for Debts

Dr. Campbell, the United Press stated, confessed the kidnaping. She said she needed the money "to clear up debts."

"I hope she receives the maximum penalty," said Mrs. Stamm, wife of a well-to-do architect-contractor and mother of the kidnaped girl. "Linda was terribly doped up and was tied up all of the time. She says she slept on the ground in a puddle and she wasn't treated nicely. And to think that woman delivered my third baby!"

"I only hope that she never gets loose to do anyone else what she has done to us."

The officers found Linda, dishevelled and incoherent from large doses of seconal, in Dr. Campbell's car. Her blond hair was matted, she was wrapped in rags, and was suffering from a cold. Otherwise she was unharmed.

When police arrested Dr. Campbell she at first protested: "I'm just a go-between." Later, however, she admitted she planned the whole kidnap plot alone.

When arrested she was wearing

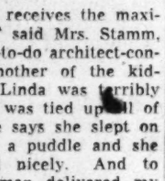
Polio Paralysis Held More Likely In Cool Climate

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP).—People living in cool climates are more likely to be paralyzed by attacks of polio than people in warm climates.

This difference was reported today by Dr. M. Lloyd Aycock, professor of preventive medicine, Harvard University Medical School, in the November issue of National Foundation News, published by the March of Dimes organization.

One Post Ad Makes Five Sales



A lady in Maryland wanted to sell a litter of Scottish terrier puppies. She ordered a two line ad in The Washington Post for a week, and just sat back and waited.

She wasn't disappointed. The very day the ad appeared, the phone began to ring—and by the end of the week she had sold all five puppies for from $35 to $45 each.

A Post classified ad is just about the easiest way to make a sale, no matter what you have to sell.

All you have to do is dial NAtional 4200 and ask for Classified. Do it today.

—'F. D. R.: His Personal Letters'—
Reports of Physical Unfitness Resented by Roosevelt in 1932

A TYPICAL VIEW OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IN 1932

This is the second of 31 installments of the personal letters, telegrams and memos of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

These letters are from the two-volume work, "F.D.R.: His Personal Letters," to be published soon by Duell, Sloan & Pearce. Elliott Roosevelt is editor of the books.

Installment Two

F.D.R. to Elisabeth Marbury in New York:

ALBANY,
APRIL 7, 1932

Dear Elisabeth:

If it had not been for the real necessity of staying here for the Legislative Investigation Committee meeting I would have gone to Washington. However, as I am going three days later all the way to St. Paul, Minnesota, I think people will not say that I am holding back. As a matter of fact, that Washington meeting will be packed anyway—and packed the wrong way!

Affectionately,

Elisabeth Marbury, Democratic National Committeewoman, had urged F.D.R. to accept the invitation to appear at the Jefferson Day dinner in Washington. She felt that his absence would lend support to a whispering campaign that he had to save himself physically, and that by remaining away he played into the hands of his enemies. The St. Paul meeting was also a Jefferson Day dinner, being held on April 18. F.D.R.'s feeling that the Washington meeting would be "packed" was borne out to some extent when Alfred E. Smith used the dinner to declare that he would take off "coat and vest to fight to the end" any candidate who demagogically tried to stir up the working people and set "class against class and rich against poor." These remarks were generaly regarded as an attack on F.D.R.'s "Forgotten Man" speech of April 7.

F.D.R. to James M. Curley in Boston (Telegram):

ALBANY,
APRIL 29, 1932.

I am not the least bit downhearted and you need not be either. You are right that a skirmish does not win a battle. I do not need to tell you how grateful I am for all that you have done.

Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Al Smith, with the support of the State organization headed by Governor Ely and Senator Walsh, gained a stunning victory over F.D.R. in the Massachusetts primaries. Curley's leadership of the F.D.R. forces, while costly to Curley (who made himself very unpopular with the Irish, who idolized Smith), was not an unmixed blessing for F.D.R., as Curley was continuously involved in bitter factional fights with other Democratic leaders in Massachusetts.

F.D.R. to William T. Dewart in New York (Telegram):

WARM SPRINGS,
MAY 20, 1932

I feel sure the Sun editorial was written in good faith and on misinformation but without a political motive. But in view of the statement, which is fortunately not at all true, that I came to Warm Springs of necessity for my health I request that you send your son or George Van Slyke here at once to witness facts at first hand. I shall be here till Tuesday afternoon and shall expect one of them by Sunday morning.

I am asking this of a friend in common decency. You would do the same if I charged publicly that you had to go to the Thousand Islands for two months each summer in order to keep alive. I shall appreciate a wire from you. My regards,

Franklin D. Roosevelt

This personal wire to the publisher of the New York Sun concerned an editorial stating that the health of presidential aspirants was a legitimate subject of public interest, and that in the Sun's opinion F. D. R.'s visits to Warm Springs were a matter of physical necessity.

There is no record that Dewart's son or George Van Slyke, the Sun's political reporter, came to Warm Springs. But on May 21 the Sun did publish a letter from Dr. Leroy Hubbard of Warm Springs, attesting to F. D. R.'s excellent health and pointed out that 12 of the largest insurance companies had joined together to issue a policy of half a million dollars to F. D. R., with the Warm Springs Foundation as the beneficiary.

F.D.R. to Dave H. Morris in New York:

ALBANY,
JUNE 6, 1932

Dear Dave:

I hope that during the next two or three weeks you and the other members of the committee can get a few prominent people to come out publicly and state two simple facts.

First, that businessmen re-

Phone Strike Peace Effort Fails Again

Federal Mediators Balked in Attempt To Solve Problem At New York Parley

Federal mediators met another deadlock last night in an attempt to end the four-day telephone workers' strike which has idled a union-estimated 120,000 CIO workers in 43 States.

Neither the Western Electric Company, equipment arm of the Bell system, nor the CIO Communications Workers of America, changed their positions after a two-hour conference in New York.

Meanwhile, Chesapeake & Potomac officials said here last night that the Washington area's phone service will be "almost normal" today though striking Western Electric employes planned to renew picket lines this morning.

Long-distance service was reported normal here yesterday as the strikers withheld picket lines to permit phone company employes to get extra pay for holiday work.

Intensification of picketing, however, seemed a certainty in some areas this week if a settlement is not reached. Thirty other CIO unions have been asked to provide picket help in New York for the striking communications workers.

Harry Lentz, coleader of the 310 Western Electric employes striking here, said picketing would be resumed today at C. & P. buildings. The union pickets during the weekend confined their activity in this area to the Western Electric buildings.

C. & P. officials in the District said that supervisory workers again would fill in for operators and other workers who refuse to cross picket lines this week.

Local divisions of the CIO union, other than the striking segment, have been instructed to observe the picket lines wherever they appear, but not to participate in picketing.

Lentz said yesterday that picket lines would be shifted to various C. & P. buildings in the District today, as last week, to make up for the relatively small number of striking employes.

Mediators tried yesterday to strike a compromise between the CIO workers and Western Electric over union demands for a 15-cent hourly wage increase and a one-year contract agreement.

Across the country, the 33,000 striking workers have used the off-and-on picketing system to try and keep the company guessing as to where emergency operations are needed.

Injunctions banning picketing were issued in four states yesterday, union spokesmen said.

A statewide injunction was issued in Alabama, with similar court orders handed down in six Indiana cities, including Indianapolis, Evansville, South Bend and Jeffersonville, the union reported.

Altogether, the strike has idled an estimated 120,000 CIO workers, including those who have refused to cross the picket lines.

A 4-cents-an-hour difference between union demands and company offers has so far caused the deadlock.

Gray Urges Continued European Aid

Coordinated Action Also Stressed in Report on Program For World Security

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The White House yesterday made public the long-awaited Gordon Gray report, stating how America should apply its economic strength in an international-minded way to help secure its global foreign policy aims.

The document proposes:

Continuing aid to western Europe, to run three or four more years, particularly in view of the fact that Marshall Plan aid is scheduled to end in 1952.

A great program of development in backward Asiatic lands, financed by American loans of 600 to 800 million dollars a year and 500 million dollars of grants.

A series of major modifications in American tariff, agricultural, shipping and administrative policies designed to serve foreign policy objectives.

Aim Is World Security

Its dominant theme is that our foreign economic policy must serve our national aim for world security against Soviet aggresson, and that there is a "fundamental unity" in our national interest and in the interests of the rest of the globe to build the prosperity and defenses of the non-Communist countries.

This statement of objectives of the American foreign economic policy was specifically indorsed by President Truman in making the Gray report public.

How Congress will receive it—a document internationalist in philosophy to the highest degree—is problematical. Between its completion and its publication, the election greatly reduced the strengh in Congress of the bloc supporting the Administration's ideas on foreign policy, and reinforced, in numbers and psychologically, the faction generally hostile to all foreign economic aid projcts.

The report was prepared by an interdepartmental staff under the direction of Gordon Gray, former Secretary of the Army and now president of the University of North Carolina.

Principal Recommendations

The report's principal recommendations:

1. Aid to western Europe should be continued "another 3 or 4 years beyond the present time." The report did not specify any amount.

It argued that the need for such aid derives almost entirely from the new rearmament program, because in the absence of that new development, those nations stood to be independent of further American financial help by 1952, terminal date of the Marshall Plan.

2. A great new program, for the purpose of world security in face of an immediate and serious threat of Communist aggression, must be financed by the United

Calls Korea Move Unnecessary

U. N. Envoy Flies to Far East, Seeks Talk With China Reds

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 12 (AP).—Labeling Chinese Communist interference in Korea "unwarranted and unnecessary," Australia's James Plimsoll flew to the Far East today for what he hopes will be direct negotiations with Red leaders on the situation.

Plimsoll is a member of the United Nations' seven-man Korean Commission.

He left for Korea via Tokyo the day after Chinese Communist Foreign Minister Chou En-lai spurned a Security Council request to debate General MacArthur's charges that Red Chinese troops are fighting in Korea.

Chou suggested, instead, that the Council combine his charges of American aggression against Formosa with new ones of American aggression against Korea.

The Council has not yet decided what attitude it will take toward the Red suggestion, but observers feel that the United States, Britain and other nations fighting Communist aggression in Korea will refuse to put themselves in the position of defendants.

U.N. Council to Take Up Israel-Arab Issue

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 12 (U.P.).—The United Nations Security Council will divert its attention tomorrow from the Korean crisis to hear cross-complaints from Israel and Arab nations on a danger spot in a different part of the world.

The Palestine question, shoved aside by the Council Friday in order to examine the growing crisis raised by the presence of Chinese Communist troops in Korea.

U. N. Planes Kill 1000, Halt Drive By Chinese

Attack Had Driven 2 Miles Into Line; Allied Air Fleet Hits Yalu Bridges

BULLETIN

UNITED STATES EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS (Monday) Nov. 13 (AP).—A strong Red Chinese attack Sunday drove a 2-mile penetration into the South Korean Sixth Division lines but was checked by heavy Allied fighter-bomber strikes.

Communists killed by the plane attack were estimated at 1000.

The South Korean Seventh Division launched supporting attacks Monday morning to push back the Communist force which had driven more than 2 miles south of Kunu to the Tokchon lateral road.

Communist forces stubbornly resisted a United States First Cavalry Division advance near Wonni on the south bank of the Chongchon River and also on the north bank north of Kunu.

SEOUL, Nov. 12 (AP).—Allied troops hammered out small gains on the northwest Korean front and repelled Communist counterattacks in the northeast today.

American planes made powerful strikes to check the flow of Red reinforcements and supplies from Manchuria.

More than 100 carrier-based planes smashed a span of the vital Yalu River bridge at Sinuiju, where enemy supplies enter northwest Korea from Manchuria. A gaping hole also was torn in the highway approach to the bridge on the Korean side.

The strike was made in bad weather, with targets obscured by haze and heavy ground fog.

B-29s Drop 240 Tons

American B-29 Superforts, B-26 light bombers, jets and Mustang fighters also delivered smashing blows. The B-29s unloaded 240 tons of fire bombs on targets in north-central and northwestern Korea. Fragmentation bombs and jellied gasoline from light bombers were strewn across enemy positions in the northwest.

The Superfort strike was concentrated in the Manpojin area, just south of the Yalu in north-central Korea. Nearly half the 240-ton bomb load was dropped on that city, with excellent results despite intensive antiaircraft fire, crews reported.

Pukchin, supply and communication center south of Manpojin, got the rest of the B-29 incendiaries.

Ground action near Yongbyon got close support from the fighter-bombers. An estimated 200 Com-

Tibet Reported Asking Reds To Withdraw

Mission From Lhasa May Evade Peiping Until Troops Get Out

NEW DELHI, India (Sunday), Nov. 12 (AP).—A Tibetan delegation in India was reported today to have informed Communist China it will not proceed to her capital for negotiations unless Chinese invading armies withdraw to the Chinese-Tibetan frontier.

The Tibetan mission was to have gone to Peiping to negotiate on future Chinese-Tibetan relations when the Communist march into Tibet stopped them.

Press reports published here this morning said Tsepon Shakabpa, Tibetan Finance Minister and head of the seven-member delegation, has wired the Chinese Ambassador in New Delhi that his mission will not proceed to Peiping unless Red troops withdraw beyond the Kamdok River on the Sino-Tibetan border.

The mission is still in Kalimpong, near the Indian-Tibetan border. Shakabpa told newsmen there that according to latest advices from the Tibetan capital of Lhasa the city is peaceful and life there normal.

Reports from Kalimpong—the rumor mill of the present Sino-Tibetan conflict—put the invaders 380 miles inside the Himalayan country, about 120 miles from Lhasa. Latest information of the Indian government put the Chinese still about 300 miles east of the capital.

'Proof' Is Offered That Britain Was Bible's Holy Land

LONDON, Nov. 12 (U.P.)—Comyns Beaumont offered today to take any qualified archeologist around Britain and prove on the spot that this island and not Palestine is the Holy Land of the Bible.

Beaumont, a sprightly 71 with a long career in writing and publishing, has spent 40 years developing the theory that the Garden of Eden was actually in Somerset County and that civilization sprang into being in what are now the desolate areas of northernmost Scotland.

Now he has assembled what he regards as final proof and is completing the manuscript of a book complete with maps in which the familiar site of Palestine is superimposed on Britain "In their rightful places."

Reds Say U. S. Steps Up Raids Inside China

Protest Dated Nov. 11 Charges Americans Extend 'Intervention'

LONDON (Monday), Nov. 13 (U.P.).—Communist China has accused the United States of increasing air attacks on northeast China, radio Moscow reported today.

The new charges were made "by a representative of the Chinese Foreign Office" and dated November 11, the radio said.

"From beginning to end, General MacArthur's report and Mr. Austin's statement represent falsification of the facts, completely contradicting the truth and a noisy attempt to frighten China," the statement said.

It referred to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's report on November 6 of "foreign intervention" in Korea—meaning Chinese Communist intervention—and the presentation of the communique to the United Nations two days later by Warren R. Austin, United State delegate.

"In reality, the facts show that the United States has invaded Chinese territory and violated the sovereignty of China and is threatening the security of China," the statement said. "The Chinese people have every reason to make an accusation against the United States Government for its provocations and aggression against China, which every day are becoming more serious.

"Filled with just indignation, the Chinese people are voluntarily helping the Korean people beat off American aggression and its actions are perfectly natural and just."

The Chinese statement charged that "recently the number of attacks from the air have been increasing day by day."

"The crimes committed by the American armed forces, violating the sovereignty of China and threatening its security, are alarming the whole Chinese people," the statement continued.

"The facts show that the aim of American aggression in Korea is not just Korea itself but the extension of aggression to China. The question of Korea's independent existence or destruction has always been directly linked with the security of China.

The Peiping regime, the statement said, "considers that there are no reasons to prevent the departure of volunteers to Korea who want, under the leadership of the government of the Korean Peoples Democratic Republic, to take part in the great liberation struggle of the Korean people

Most Departments Moved

Post to Publish First Edition In New Building Today

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

The Washington Post today will edit and publish its first newspaper from the country's newest newspaper plant.

By 9 a. m. today most departments of the paper will have been transferred from the building at 1337 E st. nw. to The Post's new home at 1515 L st. nw.

But the big move is still not complete.

Still to move to the new Post building over the next weeks are the advertising, business, circulation and executive offices. Meanwhile, they will continue to function in the old building for the benefit of advertisers. So will the front counter.

Then the change-over will be complete: The Washington Post will have transferred some 781,000 pounds of equipment and more than 700 employes to the paper's fifth home in 73 years.

Since 2 a. m. yesterday the composing room and most of the news departments, including 42 of the 4000-pound linotype machines have been transfererd.

Here's what the linotype-moving job alone required:

A portion of the wall was removed at the second-floor level in the rear of the old Post building. The machines were lowered onto waiting trucks. At the new building, a crane hoisted the machines to the fourth-floor level and the linotypes were moved into place and again connected for operation.

And all this was done in stages—so there would be a minimum of difficulty in setting type for future editions.

The new building houses two rows of presses, which have been printing at least part of the newspaper for several weeks. The new stereotype department has been operating a week. In this department papier-mache impressions of type are molded into the circular "plates" that go on the press and actually print the paper.

Moving the news departments was another step-by-step process, requiring another complex "table of operations." Each reporter's typewriter and personal files were ticketed for relocation at his new desk in the new building.

Two Washington transfer companies are making the move on a timetable basis. They are the Fidelity Storage and Merchants Transfer and Storage companies.

The Washington Post's library—hundreds of reference books, thousands of files—will move beginning at 6 p. m. today.

The telephone system has been split:

A new switchboard was put in

1 or 2 Carriers Commissioned

Russia Reported Building 4 Battleships, Raft of Subs

LONDON, Nov. 12 (AP).—An unofficial British survey of the world's armed forces said today Russia is rapidly building up a strong navy based on ideas other nations fear to be outmoded.

The survey, "Brassey's 1950 annual," said other navies generally are waiting a satisfactory answer to the destructive potential of the atom bomb, the guided missile and the fast submarine.

The annual, which has been published for 64 years, said Russia has completed two 35,000-ton battleships this year and has two more under construction. It said the battlewagons mount nine 16-inch guns and can make 29 knots.

The survey said the Soviet Union has also commissioned one or two aircraft carriers this year. It gave Russia's present submarine strength as 360 and said she plans to expand her underwater fleet to 1000 by the end of 1951.

"There is an impression of unreality about this Russian naval expansion, if only because it seems to be based on a faulty conception of modern naval requirements," Brassey's said.

Similar reports of Russia's big naval building program have been printed in the authoritative "Jane's Fighting Ships" and in Swedish newspapers.

Although the Russians have not given out any details, they have boasted they are building a fleet to rival those of the United States and Britain.

Brassey's also estimated the Russians had three million men under arms and would have trained manpower reserves of 12 to 13 million by 1954.

Secretary Matthews Starts Far East Tour

Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews left Washington last night on a 20-day inspection tour of the Pacific and Far East that will include conferences with General Douglas MacArthur and a first-hand inspection of Korean battle areas, the Navy announced.

Matthews will hit Pearl Harbor, Guam, the Philippines, Okinawa and Tokyo on the outbound leg of his journey. He will return by way of the Aleutians and Alaska.

60 Percent of Quota Attained

Chest Drive to Continue Until All Nine Units Report

The 1951 Community Chest drive will continue until all nine soliciting units turn in their reports, Chairman Hugh K. Duffield informed keymen at the end of the fourth week of the campaign for $4,260,000.

Sixty percent of this quota—$2,559,331—has been pledged or collected so far.

Urging Government, business and county units to reach three million dollars by Tuesday's general report meeting, he called it "an important psychological step in reforming the lines for the final drive of the campaign."

Of the 284,000 people who are expected to call on Red Feather agencies and the Hospitalization Fund in 1951, there are still 113,600 yet to be provided for as of present campaign results. An estimated 34,000 in the armed forces and their families who may face emergencies for which the Chest can provide, are included in the 284,000 total.

At the Tuesday general report luncheon - meeting, Lieutenant General Edward H. Brooks, assistant chief of staff of the Army, will address workers at 12:20 p. m. in the Washington Hotel. He will stress the need of providing $230,000 fund for service to the armed force.

Six Children Die In Sleep as Fire Razes Their Home

GARRETT, Pa., Nov. 12 (AP).—Six sleeping children were killed in a fire which swept through an old frame house in this little mining community early today.

The victims were from 2 to 15 years old. Their parents were away.

Five victims were the children of Harvey Lee, 40, a welder, and his wife, Stella, 37. The other victim, Clarence Lee, 15, was a brother of Mrs. Lee, whose maiden name also was Lee.

Will Walk Again

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 12 (AP).—Nina "Honey Bear" Warren, polio-stricken daughter of Governor Earl Warren, will walk again.

Her chief attending physician, Dr. Junius B. Harris, so reported after tests today showed her legs are no longer paralyzed.

Julia Marlowe Is Dead

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP).—Julia Marlowe, 85-year-old former actress who with her husband, the late E. H. Sothern, was the leading exponent of Shakespearean plays from 1904 to 1924, died today in her New York City hotel.

Political Opponents Reported to Be Shaping Policy Attack on Agriculture Department

By John W. Ball
Post Reporters

The Department of Agriculture is reported to be in for a severe going-over in the next few months.

Congress is coming back, with the Democrats smarting over the loss of the Midwest farm votes that elected President Truman in 1948. Republicans are returning, pledged to make trouble for Secretary Charles F. Brannan and the farm proposal he advanced two years ago. They charge Brannan plunged Agriculture into politics in 1948, and kept it there in the intervening two years by inducing the White House to make the Brannan Plan an Administration policy.

The recent campaign was marked by demands by candidates of both parties for investigations or reorganizations of the department. The recess was marked by incidents, such as the restrictive export quota for cotton that resulted in a price break, and further resentment.

Here are some of the oustanding congressional demands that the department is facing:

1. An investigation by the Senate Agriculture Subcommittee on Utilization of Farm Crops in the recent purchase by the Government of 112 million gallons of alcohol from France. Chairman Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) is interested in finding out why such quantities are being purchased abroad while (1) the Government is destroying millions of bushels of potatoes from which alcohol may be made and (2) Government-built alcohol plants at Burlington, Iowa; Omaha, Nebr., and Kansas City, Mo., are making or preparing to manufacture alcohol for beverage purposes, while stocks of such alcohol are sufficient to meet any prospective early demand.

2. A move that may be spearheaded by upcoming Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee to force a reorganization of the Department, either by Brannan or by Congress itself. Ellender is particularly insistent upon combining soil conservation activities into one bureau.

3. A demand for a thorough review of the Commodity Credit Corporation's price support operations, with emphasis on the potato, butter, dried eggs and milk purchases. Several House members from city districts are asking why Government is spending so much taxpayers' money to maintain high prices on food their consumer constituents have to buy.

4. Investigation of the cotton quota order. One of Brannan's loyal supporters, Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.) of the House Agriculture Committee, has been bitter in his criticism of this action. Visiting Production and Marketing Administrator Ralph S. Trigg just after the quota was set, Cooley angrily scolded all who had anything to do with it, and freely charged them with favoring textile mill owners above cotton growers.

5. Investigation of the operation of the cotton acreage allocations last year, as well as acreage restrictions on wheat and some other crops.

6. A demand for loosening restrictions on the importation of foreign labor such as was admitted during the war from the Bahamas, Mexico, and Jamaica.

Brannan took some bad beatings in the election. Two good friends—his best defenders in each House—will not be around after January. Chairman Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), who offered the Brannan Plan to Congress, was defeated in the primaries by Representative A. S. Mike Monroney, an opponent of the plan. Representative Stephen Pace (D., Ga.) did not run for reelection. Pace was one of the most respected members of the Agriculture Committee.

Egyptian Smugglers Caught in Gun Fight

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Police arrested three smugglers and seized more than 2200 pounds of hashish today after a gun battle between Coast Guard ships and smuggling craft on Lake Borollos midway between the two channels of the Nile.

Fighting broke out after smugglers tried to bribe the Coast Guards for 600 pounds sterling, about $1700.

a man's clothes and carried a .25-caliber pistol.

Found in Dr. Campbell's car were $750 in travelers' checks which Dr. Eric Hausner identified as checks stolen last March from his office, which is across the hall from the office of Dr. Campbell. Dr. Hausner said "several instruments" were taken at the same time, according to State police.

Dr. Campbell, who is unmarried but has an adopted 4-year-old son, calmly thumbed through magazines as she sat in the Santa Fe jail today. Her attorney, A. L. Zinn, said she seemed "immune to any sense of wrong" and said he would seek to have her sent to a sanatorium for "medical care and observation."

The woman's attorney said Dr. Campbell "unquestionably" was "mentally affected" by a fall in her kitchen a month ago. Zinn quoted Dr. Elroy Miller, Albuquerque brain surgeon, as saying Dr. Campbell suffered a "lesion on the right temple, pressing and affecting the left lobe of the brain."

Assistant District Attorney Robert Fox said kidnap charges will be filed against Dr. Campbell "if facts as reported are true." The maximum penalty for kidnaping in New Mexico is death by electrocution.

Dr. Campbell, police recounted, went to the Stamm estate at 4:30 Friday afternoon, dressed as a man. She promised Linda to take her to her mother, who was attending a bridge club, and gave the girl a letter for her father.

Linda handed the letter to the maid. The maid said she begged Linda to stay at home. She said the "man" wore dark glasses, and a stocking cap.

Letter Crudely Printed

At 5:30 Mrs. Stamm returned home, found her daughter was missing and opened the letter. The note, crudely printed on ruled paper, said:

"Your child has been kidnaped. He (the letter said) will get good care for now, but if we have to keep him long he may feel cold and hungry. You have money and influence. Get it quick and you get your child quick and safe. The amount is $20,000 cash or negotiable bonds. Put same in envelope on top of your Sol y Lomas gate tonight if you can. If not until tomorrow night, put a red rag as a sign. If to be Monday night put a blue rag. If not at all—your kid will die of cold and hunger. New Mexico is an easy place to lose a body. Do not talk about this to police, FBI or friends.

"Any effort to interfere with our messenger the child dies. We would like better $100, $500 or $1000 bills. In any case, put money under rock at 7 p. m. and do not come back for one hour. Your child will be home in three hours."

The FBI was notified. Thirty officers hid in the dark near the gate to the Stamm estate until a yellow Buick convertible parked some distance away. Dr. Campbell walked to the gate. As she bent to pick up the "ransom money" box beside the gate, officers surrounded her.

Truman Still Hasn't Decided On Calling Congress, He Says

President Truman returned to Washington yesterday after a five-day rest cruise on the presidential yacht Williamsburg.

Smiling and in apparent good spirits, the President told reporters as he landed at 4 p. m.:

"I had lots of sleep and a good rest."

The President said he still had not made up his mind about calling Congress back ahead of its November 27 scheduled convening date.

Mr. Truman said he planned to talk with Vice President Barkley and other congressional leaders early this week and then reach a decision.

Earlier Charles G. Ross, press secretary, told reporters who covered the cruise from another yacht, the My Mary Gail, that "the President may have something to say about that early in the week."

Asked whether he had anything to say about the outcome of the elections, the President grinned broadly and said he had no comment.

Wearing an overcoat against the chilly breeze, Mr. Truman stepped jauntily into a waiting limousine and went directly to Blair House.

No members of his official family were on hand to greet him. He was accompanied on his cruise by a large White House staff with whom he conferred daily on many important matters, including the question of the return of Congress.

Mr. Truman left Washington Tuesday afternoon, only a few hours after his return from Independence, Mo., where he had voted that morning.

Britain Honors Dead of 2 Wars

LONDON, Nov. 12 (AP).—King George VI led Britain today in honoring the dead of the two world wars.

Throughout the country traditional services were held at war memorials — wreaths of poppies were laid, guns boomed and for two minutes Britons stood in silent homage.

Republican, Democrat To Plug for U. N.

Representatives Brooks Hays (D., Ark.) and Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.), announced yesterday they will make a cross-country speaking tour together to plug for a stronger United Nations and show there still is unity on "fundamental" foreign policy.

The tour will begin November 28. It will include speeches in Seattle, San Francisco, Dallas.

Allied Bombers Hit Yalu Bridges

munist trooops were killed on the road between Anju and Unsan.

Mustangs destroyed a large enemy fuel dump, at least 56 gasoline-laden trucks and killed 120 Reds in the Sakchu area, near the Yalu River in the northwest.

A spokesman at General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters called the current Allied push a limited offensive, but declined to define its aims.

A United States intelligence officer in the field warned, however, that the Chinese Red soldiers in Korea might succeed in pinning down the United Nations forces for a long and bitter winter campaign.

In a Sunday of relatively light ground activity, the situation was this:

Northwest Front, along the Chongchon River—United States First Cavalry Division elements advanced a mile and a quarter north and northwest of Kunu. They were pushing toward high ground commanding the approaches to the walled city of Yongbyon, four miles away. They found the Reds well dug in and camouflaged north of the Chongchon River, but resistance was moderate.

A captured soldier said he belonged to the North Korean Forty-seventh Division and contended there were no Chinese in his division.

On the First Cavalry's right flank, but south of the Chongchon River, the United States Ninth Regimental Combat Team moved to high ground a quarter mile north of the village of Won, northeast of Kunu, against heavy enemy resistance.

Elements of the Korean Republican (ROK) First Division, the British Commonwealth Brigade and the United States Twenty-fourth Division generally held firm, waiting for the First Cavalry to pull abreast of their lines, ranging 35 miles westward to the sea. They sent patrols out several thousand yards without finding substantial opposition.

Fifteen miles west of Kunu, the ROK First Division reported no enemy contact during the day, but said Communists were observed assembling at Napchongjong, 20 miles west of Pakchon. Another enemy group, estimated at 700, was reported assembling eight miles west of Pakchon.

Other units of the ROK First Division on the north bank of the Chongchon River northwest of Sinanju, also in the Pakchon area, sent patrols into a section from which Communist troops launched three unsuccessful counterattacks Saturday night. The patrols found 200 enemy dead.

There were signs the Communists had withdrawn rapidly. Left behind were truckloads of automatic weapons and two 40 mm. antiaircraft guns. A spokesman said the ROK troops had been faced by "pretty green forces, probably security troops."

An enemy attack was repulsed one and one-half miles southwest of Pakchon.

In the United States Twenty-fourth Division sector an enemy group of about 40 men was detected moving eastward, in front of the division's right flank 11 miles east of Pakchon. The group was dispersed.

Farther east, in north-central Korea, a linkup of United States Eighth Army and Tenth Corps patrols was reported and then denied as erroneous, by an American spokesman.

The spokesman said there still was no solid line across Korea

Northeast Front — The ROK Capital Division hurled back counterattacking North Koreans who tried to storm across the Myong River. The Capital Division is dug in on the south bank of the river, 6 miles north of Myonghon.

A United States Tenth Corps spokesman said the ROK troops held firm against enemy forces, estimated at six to seven battalions. Their position is about 95 miles south of the Soviet Siberian border.

Third Infantry Division Ready for Korea Action

WITH TENTH CORPS, Nov. 12 (AP).—The famous United States Third Infantry Division is now ashore in Korea to lend its strength in support of other U.N. forces.

A Tenth Corps spokersman announced the division's arrival today. One regiment already had been reported as landing at Wonsan November 8.

Nepal Revolt Begins

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 12 (AP). Nepali Congress Party supporters, spurred by the exile of their liberal-minded King, have risen in revolt against the all-powerful Prime Minister of their Himalayan King and were reported today to be driving toward Nepal's capital, Katmandu.

Arms Request Denied

BONN, Nov. 12 (NYHT).—Western Germany has advanced its first proposal to the western Allies for permission to manufacture arms and ammunition, it was learned today, and has been turned down pending policy decisions on the whole remilitarization question.

U. N. Envoy Flies to Far East will be considered by the Council in an afternoon session.

Further major action by the Council on the six-power resolution to order Chinese Communist troops out of Korea probably will await the arrival of a Peiping delegation, although discussion on the proposal may continue. A final vote would not be forced by the sponsoring nations unless the Chinese Communists deliberately delay their arrival.

Yesterday, U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie was informed that the Pieping regime would send a nine-man delegation from the Communist capital by air Tuesday to attend the Security Council discussions on Formosa but no mention was made of a Council invitation to Chinese Communist delegates to attend the Council debate on Korea.

The worsening Middle East situation, although far less critical than the Korean war, will come under close study by the Security Council. Egypt and the Hashemite kingdom of Jordan have charged Israel with violations of the armistice agreements set up at the end of the Holyland war two years ago; Israel in return has charged the Arab nations with throwing a boycott around the young nation.

Israel's most bitter accusation came at the end of the Council's meeting on the Palestine question last Monday. Abba S. Eban of Israel announced that his government would press "to the utmost limits" for international action to prevent Egyptian inspection of ships passing through the Suez Canal.

Eban said that this "Suez boycott" was costing his peoples "hundreds of millions of pounds in indirect costs in violation of the armistice terms and civilized maritime practices."

His statement was considered more than an impotent charge from a small nation since the British government had been reported ready to raise the same issue before the Council. British ships moving on oil runs to Haifa had likewise been intercepted and inspected at Suez. Much to the disgruntlement of His Majesty's Government.

It was believed that Britain would wait to hear details on Israel's charges as well as the Egyptian reaction before taking any active part in the debate. Egyptian experts contend the inspections are necessary as a means of intercepting any contraband war material destined for Israel.

O'Conor Asks U. S. Veto On Red China Seat

BALTIMORE, Nov. 12 (AP).—Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) today urged the United States to veto, if necessary, Communist China's admission to the United Nations when the matter is acted upon before the Security Council.

O'Conor said in a statement he differed with the State Department's interpretation that the question is a "procedural" one instead of a "substantive" matter.

O'Conor said the Red Chinese government already has shown its defiance of the U. N. and its objectives, so it would be "foolhardy to expect them to fulfill their contractual responsibilities in the functioning of the U. N."

Korea Must Carry Big Burden Of Recovery, ECA Chief Says

SEOUL, Nov. 12 (AP).—America's Economic Cooperation Administration chief told Koreans today they will have to "bear the brunt and set the pace" in rebuilding their war-ravaged country.

The administrator, William C. Foster, assured a gathering of Korean leaders, however, of the full support of the United States and "the entire free world" in erasing the scars of war and putting the country back on its feet.

The Koreans, in turn, called on the United States to strengthen its ECA program in Korea.

A Korean special committee on economic problems told Foster the country will need economic aid from one independent source to supplement the United Nations rehabilitation program.

Foster's first step was announcement of the appointment of Clarence E. Meyer, retired vice president of Standard Vacuum Oil, as head of the ECA mission in Korea. Meyer, with 21 years business experience in the Far East, is exected to arrived in Seoul about December 1.

Foster told the Koreans first priority must be given to sound fiscal policies as the cornerstone of reconstruction. He said:

"I must warn you the inflictions of inflation are second only to those of the battlefield in their effect on a people and nation."

The Korean committee prepared a memorandum listing immediate needs, among which were raiway equipment, coastal shipping, trucks, fertilizers and all types of construction materials.

Fall Held Likely

French Take Civilians Out Of Moncay

SAIGON, French Indo-China, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—The French high command announced today that civilians were being evacuated by sea from besieged Moncay, indicating that the last frontier fort soon will be surrendered to Communist Viet Minh forces.

A high command spokesman said the Communists had pushed to within mortar range of Moncay, 140 miles northeast of Hanoi, but that the garrison was "still holding fast."

The French disclosed yesterday that the Reds had seized Than Puon, an outpost guarding the land approaches to Moncay after a fierce battle in which enemy losses were high.

Here in Saigon, terrorists hurled a grenade into a bar, killing one French noncommissioned officer and wounding three others. Another grenade was tossed into the lobby of the Hotel des Nations, where United States military personnel is quartered, but it did not explode.

Intelligence had no new report on the fate of Red leader Ho Chi Minh, whose secret headquarters at Dangxa was smashed by bombers Friday. The raid was ordered when agents reported that Ho, his Generalissimo Von Guyen Giap and "foreign military advisers"—Chinese and perhaps Russian—were having a strategy conference there.

Moncay is the eastern anchor of what was once a chain of forts stretching north and west along the Communist China border. All the others, from Laokay to Langson, have been wrested from the French by Ho Chi Minh's Communist legions.

Pigs Set Off Mines, Panic Part of Hanoi

HANOI, French Indo-China, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—Pigs started heavy predawn shelling and machine-gun fire today which panicked the residents of southeastern Hanoi.

Military authorities said the pigs set off a minefield near the city and the French garrison, believing the Viet Minh Communists were attacking, fired for more than an hour.

Red Chinese Press Whips Up New Frenzy of Anti-U. S. Talk

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12 (AP). The official Chinese Communist newspaper Peoples Daily of Peiping asserted today that American forces in Korea could not be halted "unless we check them with force and compel them to stop."

In one of the most virulent anti-American propaganda campaigns yet recorded, the Peiping radio, which quoted the paper, also echoed the Communist Chinese government's charge the United States had launched "direct armed invasion" against Formosa, island stronghold of Chiang Kai-shek.

The broadcasts further contended that the important industrial centers of Manchuria "would be threatened by the enemy's gunfire" if Red China's population did not "volunteer" for active resistance in Korea.

Quoting a "competent observer," the official Red radio asserted the American Government "gained control" of Formosa by supplying money and arms to Chiang Kai-shek's forces.

The radio contended that after President Truman's statement of June 27 which ordered neutralization of Formosa during the course of the Korean conflict, the United States shipped more than 700 tanks to the island, anchored 17 warships in Formosan waters and set up an advanced base for the United States Thirteenth Air Force.

Seeking to justify intervention in Korea, the Peoples Daily in an editorial said "everybody knows that China and Korea depend upon each other like lips and teeth. If lips are gone, teeth would suffer from cold. If we sit and ignore our neighbor's dire peril without rescuing him, we cannot save ourselves and we cannot talk about defending world peace."

1000 Chinese Reds Slain

TAIPEI, Formosa, Nov. 12 (AP).—Chinese Nationalist reports said today guerillas have captured two highway towns about 300 miles west of Shanghai. They said more than 1000 Chinese Reds were killed in the fight.

14 of 15 Captives Murdered After Ambush, Survivor Says

WITH U. S. 27TH REGIMENT, Nov. 11 (Delayed) (AP).—Murder of 11 Americans and three South Koreans soldiers by the Korean Reds was disclosed today by an American survivor who escaped with the aid of a Red deserter.

The machinegunning slaughter occurred in the Ichon area, 60 miles north of Seoul, where Twenty-fifth Division troops have been battling bypassed Reds.

Regimental officers identified the survivor as Corpl. William Milano of Philadelphia. Wounded in the hand, he has been sent to a rear hospital for treatment. Officers said this was his story:

The Americans and South Koreans, on a reconnaissance patrol, were ambushed and captured.

North Koreans treated the captives well at first, binding the wounds of several. Then the Reds started interrogating prisoners.

An American officer told the GIs to refuse to answer such questions as "How many men in the United States Army? Who is the greater man—Stalin or Truman? Are the Chinese in Korea yet?"

The officer was beaten severely for giving such orders.

The prisoners were given four apples each and told they would be questioned further the next morning. Their clothing was taken and they were given North Korean uniforms.

The group was then marched up a hillside in the dust. Part way up the hill they were ordered to halt and the Reds machine-gunned them from behind.

Milando dropped to the ground at the first shots, one of which struck him in the hand. He lay among the dead all night. At dawn, he found himself the only survivor. Crawling into a cornfield, he made his way to a United States unit the next day.

Bodies of the murdered soldiers, some still with their four apples in their pockets, were recovered the next day by a patrol.

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

ANYONE who believes that politic-ing stops when the polls close on Election Day just doesn't know his Washington. For the life of me, I can't remember the time when I've heard as much "expert" analyzing as during the past week. All of a sudden, everyone seems to have become a political pundit. Our tablecloths and napkins show percentages, figures and population estimates . . . instead of the usual diagrams and dollar marks. At almost every table I hear someone pontificating "Now, as I said before the Election . . .". But as soon as the steaks appear, the conversations grind to a stop. For the next few minutes only the clinking and clanking of cutlery against china disturbs the peaceful air. Somehow, in the presence of a perfectly done filet of beef, every other subject seems unimportant. The talk, when it is resumed, becomes more temperate. It's as though the rich, bubbling juices released by eager knives soften tempers and mellow opinions. It's a long-accepted principle that the ravenous man is the revolutionary man; that food and fight just don't go together. To any restaurateur it is amply evident that the quickest way to win the peace would be to establish a chain of Parchey's in every city, town, village and hamlet behind the Iron Curtain. All talk of world conquest would quickly die out, and even normal politic-ing would be conducted on a much more reasonable scale. I see it happen every day!

What could be more appropriate at this time of year than a few words about our delicious Rockingham County, Virginia, turkeys? These plump beauties have flesh of a distinctive delicacy and flavor that (I am told) comes from a liberal admixture of violets to their standard diet of milk, corn and wheat. Our Chef Heller has a secret method of roasting turkey that results in an absolutely uniform cooking throughout. The stuffing he favors has a base of finely chopped celery, onions and green peppers sauted in table butter. To this he adds the lightly toasted crumbs of fresh bread, a dash of salt, a pinch of pepper and a wonderful bouquet of herbs and spices. Into the roasting pan with the stuffed bird goes just enough water to cover a chopped onion and a stalk of minced celery; the rich, natural juices of the bird furnish the rest of the basting fluid. When it's done to perfection, we serve you great slices with whole cranberry sauce made in our own kitchen from the choicest red fruits from Massachusetts' famed bogs, simmered slowly in water with pure cane sugar. It's a delectable feast, our turkey, and at a dollar-fifty, a rare value. Try it soon, with a side order of luscious sweet potatoes! Come to 19th at K N.W.

Steaks! Steaks! Steaks!

Among the interesting folks we were pleased to greet on their first visits to Parchey's recently were Dr. D. J. Have you tried one of our delicious Dry Manhattan cocktails? A New York friend told me that the thought of such a concoction made him shudder, but then New Yorkers have always been a provincial breed. It's really a superb aperitif. We make ours with a fine Glenmore whiskey, a superior brand of imported dry Vermouth and a great deal of patiently-acquired skill. We garnish it with a twist of lemon peel and drop in the bottom of your glass, a tender little pickled onion. Tart but not bitter, delicate in flavor yet robust in body, this specialty of our House has a nectar-like quality that enjoys a universal appeal. Drop in and enjoy one on your way home tonight. Our address: 19th at K St. N.W.

MILITARY MANAGEMENT FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

John Robert Beishline, Ph.D.
Colonel, General Staff Corps, U. S. Army

This timely book presents a scientific blueprint for maximum effectiveness and economy based on the most successful practices of American business management and the best traditions of military organization.

For a clear understanding of the problems and techniques involved, Colonel Beishline breaks down military management into four basic functions: Planning, Organizing, Commanding and Controlling. He analyzes in detail such essentials as basic problems in military administration . . . objectives and policies of military management . . . military functions . . . structure of military organization . . . leadership and morale in military management and organization . . . and the composition and duties of the general staff.

A MUST for the business man engaged in supplying the military.

The author is now assigned to the Office of the Chief of Staff, Department of the Army, as Executive to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Administration.

WHY...
AUTOMOBILES FOR ONLY THE FEW?

ONLY EIGHT WEEKS AGO, anyone could go to his automobile dealer and buy the new or used car he needed and arrange for terms to fit his budget.

ON SEPTEMBER 18, 1950, the Federal Reserve Board decreed terms of one-third down and a maximum of twenty-one months to pay the balance.

Then on October 16, 1950, without any hearing and with only 55 hours notice, the Federal Reserve Board put into effect credit controls on automobile purchases, which require a one-third down payment and reduced the time payment period from 21 months to 15 months.

If you have an average income, you know that 15 months is NOT LONG ENOUGH for you to pay for an automobile, no matter how badly you need a car.

An automobile is not a luxury. It is a real day-to-day necessity to millions of people. Everybody, except the few who can afford these extreme terms, is denied this needed transportation under tthe sudden Federal Reserve Board Regulation.

If credit must be curbed so that inflation can be held down, every one wants to do his part. But a discriminatory regulation like this one, the effect of which is felt only by the person in the average and low-wage bracket, is unfair and unjust.

Proper credit controls can be established that will be fair to ALL, so that any person who needs an automobile will not be discriminated against.

If you are in favor of increasing the present 15-month time payment period, wire or write your sentiments to: (a) your Senator and Representatives, if you are a voter, (b) the Federal Reserve Board, Washington, D. C., if you are a "voteless" D. C. resident.

Godfrey to Initiate Regular Color TV

Arthur Godfrey will be the first big-time television star to appear on regularly scheduled color television, the Columbia Broadcasting System has announced. The broadcasts, to begin Monday, November 20, will be offered in New York and Washington.

The Godfrey show, a half-hour of Hawaiian dancing and music, will be on the air from noon until 12:30 p. m., November 20. Other material will be presented from 12:30 until 1 p. m. that day, and programs will be offered from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. the rest of that week. Color programming will be gradually expanded to 20 hours a week, according to CBS.

In Washington, Station WTOP-TV, the CBS affiliate, will transmit the November 20 program and most or all of the programs for the rest of the week. A few sets capable of receiving the color broadcasts are being sent to WTOP-TV from New York. Some must be used for monitoring purposes but the station hopes to place one or two where the public can see them, according to John S. Hayes, manager of WTOP-TV and WTOP.

Washington is the only city other than New York which will get the color shows on November 20. Other cities connected to New York by the coaxial cable will be added to the color network later.

Beginning Tuesday, there will be public demonstrations of the CBS color television system at 401 5th ave., New York. Commercial operations have been authorized by the Federal Communications Commission on and after November 20.

Among the artists appearing on the five-a-day variety programs shown in New York this week will be Jody Miller, singer, of 505 North Garfield st., Arlington, Va. Miss Miller was Miss Washington in 1948 and has recently Canada, singing in supper clubs.

7,219,700 Homes Have Video Sets

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 (U.P.).—About 7,213,700 American families—almost one out of every five—own television sets, the Industrial Surveys Co. reports today.

The actual ownership ratio is 17.9 percent of the approximately 40,300,000 families in the Nation.

Geographically, more than one of every three families in the Northeastern States owns a receiver, and about one in every seven in the North Central States has a set.

"Poor" people own a good share of the sets. More than 11 in every 100 families in the lowest quarter of the economic strata have TV in their homes. Twenty-four in every 100 of the top quarter families have receivers.

Craftsmen and skilled laborers own the greatest percentage of sets among occupational groups, followed by clerical workers, sales and service workers, professional men and women, and executives, farmers own the least.

Butler Favors Further Probe Of State Dept.

Senator-elect John Marshall Butler (R., Md.) said yesterday he believes there "may be" Communist sympathizers in the State Department, and that he feels there should be further investigation by the Eighty-second Congress.

He said there is "still a doubt in people's minds" as a result of charges by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wisc.) that the State Department is infested with Communists and Red supporters.

Butler, who defeated veteran Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), was interviewed on the CBS television show, Capitol Cloakroom.

He said Tydings "whitewashed" a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigation of McCarthy's accusations.

"I believe there may be persons in the State Department that may be fellow-travelers," Butler said.

"I feel there should be further investigation. The people of the United States are entitled to know if there are, or have been Communists in the State Department."

Butler said he had not decided whether he himself would press for such a new inquiry, or whether he would participate if there is one.

Apartment Fire Smoke Drives Out Two Families

Smoke from a small fire in the kitchen of a second-floor apartment at 1301 P st. nw. last night drove out the occupants and those of the apartment above.

Mrs. Hazel Cooke of the third floor apartment said she and her young grandchild were driven out by the smoke which also was filling the hallway. After firemen put out the blaze, she returned.

The unidentified occupants of the burning second-floor apartment had to remove clothes and other articles because of the smoke's density. Firemen did not know what caused the blaze.

D.C. GI Who Enlisted At 16 Hurt in Action

A 19-year-old Army private from Washington who first enlisted at 16, was "seriously injured in action" on October 16, the Defense Department announced yesterday.

Pvt. Robert F. Chester, son of Mrs. Alice Chester of 616 I st. se., left Hine Junior High School three years ago and, falsifying his age, enlisted in the Army. He spent about 10 months with the Ninth Infantry Division at Fort Dix and was discharged when the Army discovered his age. Later he joined the Navy and was stationed at the Naval Receiving Station at Anacostia for 18 months until the enlistment term had elapsed.

Back in the Army again in July, 1950, he took combat training at Fort Dix, in the same outfit—Ninth Division—which he left two years before.

He was sent to Korea on September 19.

The only letter his family received was one sent one month ago. Private Chester then wrote he had been "under heavy fire for three days."

70th Year Helping Build Greater Washington

Mt. Rainier

... At the Rhode Island Avenue eastern gateway to the District, in adjoining Prince Georges County.

Fifty years ago several army officers purchased a 100-acre tract of land in nearby Maryland, on which John C. Calhoun had lived before the Civil War. They called the property Mt. Rainier after the famous mountain "back home."

This tract and adjoining tracts have grown from 15 houses in a half-mile radius of 34th and Perry Sts., and a population of probably not more than 50 people, to the populous and progressive community of today.

Thousands of houses in the Greater Washington area owe their existence to the financial aid of Washington Permanent. Talk over your financial requirements with us—whether you plan to build, buy, remodel, or refinance.

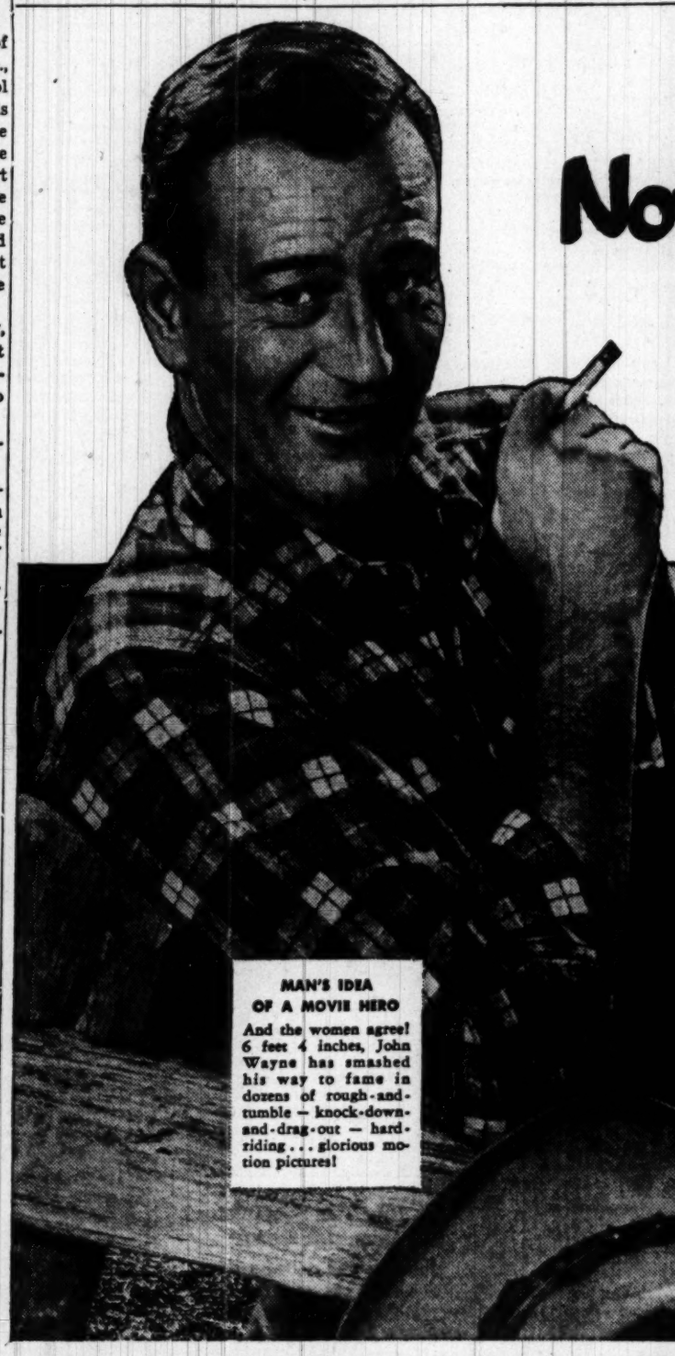
How MILD can a Cigarette be?

NOTED THROAT SPECIALISTS REPORT ON 30-DAY TEST OF CAMEL SMOKERS...

Not one single case of throat irritation due to smoking CAMELS!

Yes, these were the findings of noted throat specialists after a total of 2,470 weekly examinations of the throats of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—for 30 consecutive days.



MAN'S IDEA OF A MOVIE HERO
And the women agree! 6 feet 4 inches, John Wayne has smashed his way to fame in dozens of rough-and-tumble — knock-down-and-drag-out — hard-riding... glorious motion pictures!

"THE ROLES I PLAY IN MOVIES ARE FAR FROM EASY ON MY VOICE— I CAN'T RISK THROAT IRRITATION. SO I SMOKE CAMELS—THEY'RE MILD"

John Wayne POPULAR, HANDSOME HOLLYWOOD STAR

"I've been around movie sets long enough to know how important cigarette mildness is to an actor. So when it came to deciding what cigarette was just right for my throat, I was very particular. I made the sensible test—the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test!

"I gave Camels a real tryout for 30 days. The most pleasure I ever had from smoking. I found out for myself why more people smoke Camels than any other cigarette!"

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

MORE DOCTORS SMOKE CAMELS than any other cigarette!

In a recent nationwide survey, doctors in every branch of medicine were asked what cigarette they smoked. The brand named most was Camel!

Policing of Distillers Held States' Function

By The Associated Press

John F. O'Connell, chairman of the New York State Liquor Authority, said yesterday it is the problem of State enforcement officers, not the liquor industry, to keep undesirable elements out of the liquor business.

O'Connell said this at a news conference at which a committee of State liquor administrators made public the results of a two-year study of State alcoholic beverage control laws.

The New Yorker declined to comment on an allegation by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee that "hoodlums" had worked their way into the wholesale liquor business.

But he did say he agreed with spokesmen for the distilling industry that the States should police the liquor business, not the distillers.

The report prepared by a joint committee of members of the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators and the National Alcoholic Beverage Control Association listed "guideposts" aimed at "strengthening alcoholic beverage control laws and improving administrative procedures."

'Capone Boys' Outdone Now, Kefauver Says

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) said yesterday Senate investigations have shown organized crime today "would make kindergarten play out of the operations of the Capone boys."

Kefauver, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press" television show, said the Senate committee which he heads has found the influence of crime on public officials is "very sinister and very great."

He said the committee had the facts to prove well-organized and "tough" groups of criminals are operating throughout the country with "interlocking ownership and directorship between all groups."

He said the committee had found out whether there is one "overlord" for organized gambling and other rackets, but he could not disclose the answer at this time.

Kefauver was asked what the committee had discovered about Frank Costello, often called the overlord of United States racketeers.

He added that the committee knows Costello has operations at Saratoga, N. Y., that he has an interest in a night club in New Orleans, and that he is "in touch with racketeers all over the United States."

Kefauver said the racketeers are corrupting public officials and law enforcement officers, and are putting their money into "so-called legitimate business" in which they use racketeering methods.

Return Of Congress

When President Truman said that he might call an extraordinary session of Congress to assemble this week, he was obviously expecting an Administration victory at the polls. Now that the voters have sharply disappointed him, it seems improbable that any special session will be called. It would necessarily be a "lame duck" session, with the Senate under leadership that has been repudiated. Because of the substantial turnover of seats in both the House and Senate, neither body is likely to pass any controversial legislation before the new Congress meets in January. A call for a special session beginning this week could be expected to increase this reluctance to act, because the Republicans would suspect the Administration of trying to get its measures enacted before its strength in Congress is reduced.

Without any action on the part of the White House, Congress will resume its work on November 27 in accord with its pre-election agreement. Reluctance to legislate will also be in evidence at that time, but Congress should be able to start hearings on the new tax bill, to pass the bills giving Statehood to Hawaii and Alaska and home rule to the District of Columbia, to extend rent controls and pass any emergency legislation that may be required.

Rent controls will expire at the end of December unless some action is taken by the present Congress. With home building curtailed and a large defense program under way, the least Congress can do is to extend the Rent Control Act temporarily until the new Congress has an opportunity to decide what it will do. But such emergency chores can doubtless be attended to between November 27 and the Christmas holidays. Probably nothing would be gained by a special summons to Congress from the White House, and it might easily have the effect of prejudicing the relations of the President with the new Congress.

Revised BLS Index

A large and increasing number of wage contracts contain so-called escalator clauses providing for wage adjustments when living costs rise or fall. Consequently the index used to measure changes in living costs should be up-to-date and as accurate a measure as possible of the cost of the goods and services that the average working class family customarily buys. The index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics is admittedly defective in some respects, particularly the rent index, which does not include new rental housing exempt from rent controls. The BLS has accordingly decided to revise its index, including various new items, making allowance for recent rent increases, and changing the weighting of some items on its present list.

This new index will be ready by the end of this year and will be revised backward to cover the period since the outbreak of war in Korea and possibly to January, 1950. Groups dissatisfied with the present index will be able to substitute the revised one, while the old index will continue to be issued during the coming year for the use of those employers and unions whose wage contracts are tied to the present index. Of course, there is no way of knowing whether the new index will show any great divergence from the existing one. But we venture to guess that the difference will not be very large. For a comprehensive index such as that of the BLS is not likely to be greatly affected by the addition of a few articles.

A strong case could be made for limiting instead of expanding the index to cover only essential items of food, clothing and shelter except for the fact that in this country working family incomes today are far above subsistence levels, permitting the purchase of numerous articles once regarded as luxuries. There is, indeed, a danger connected with inclusion of too many nonessential items in a living cost index, unless we recognize that they are luxuries and that it may be necessary to dispense with some of them under existing conditions.

If our economic experts are right in declaring that everyone must be prepared to sacrifice something to strengthen national defense, it follows that every family, whether classified as a moderate-income family or a high-income family, will have to retrench to some extent—in other words, be content with a somewhat lower standard of living. So, while it is important to make living cost indices as accurate as possible, it is equally important to remember that increases in living costs do not always require—or justify—offsetting increases in wages, salaries, or other income.

Nobel Nobility

Just why Mr. William Faulkner was deemed not quite worthy of the 1949 Nobel Prize in literature last year yet retroactively worthy of it now is one of the deeper mysteries of the psychology of prize committees and hence hardly a safe subject for exploration on our moving day. It may be, of course, that when Mr. Faulkner's name was proposed to the committee some of its members had never heard of him and had to take a year off to become acquainted with his works. If so, it is gratifying to think that Mr. Faulkner's credentials were so quickly approved. Anyway, he becomes the fourth American to receive this recognition, the others being the Messrs. Sinclair Lewis (1930) and Eugene O'Neill (1936) and Mrs. Pearl Buck (1938). Or if Mr. T. S. Eliot (1948) is counted an American, Mr. Faulkner becomes the fifth; but Mr. Eliot, having been converted in his youth to royalism, classicism and Anglo-Catholicism, long ago transferred his political allegiance to the British crown.

To give the prize to the classicist Mr. Eliot one year and the next to the Freudian romantic Mr. Faulkner certainly argues a commendable catholicity of taste on the part of the committee. Of course, there are some who say that Mr. Eliot isn't a classicist at all, if what is meant by a classicist is somebody like Dryden or Pope or Racine or Moliere. They say he really belongs in the same bracket as those symbolist fellows like Mallarme whose work is—well not exactly caviar but a sort of rather dense pea soup—to those who are not in the poet's confidence or who have not at least read Mr. William P. Empson's Seven Types of Ambiguity. But this, too, is much too difficult an argument to get into on moving day, and with your kind indulgence we shall rule it out of bounds.

There may be some who will raise against the award of the Nobel Prize to Mr. Faulkner the same objection that was raised a couple of years ago by a critic in the Literary Supplement of the Times of London to the award to Mr. O'Neill. The late Alfred Nobel, observed this critic, stipulated in his will that the prize should be awarded only for "distinguished work of an idealistic tendency" and that only by "stretching and straining" those words out of all meaning could they be made to fit the kind of world presented in Mr. O'Neill's plays, which resemble a "bestiary full of vulpine animals and crushed worms." There are no doubt some (including, we suspect, the same critic) who would apply the same description to the damp, dense jungles of the Mississippian Id in which Mr. Faulkner's characters are accustomed to wander about. Another who may be a bit indignant about the award is Mr. John O'Hara. Mr. O'Hara recently threw the literary brethren into a mild dither by asserting that the only great writer since Shakespeare is Mr. Ernest Hemingway. But unless the World Almanac has grossly deceived us, Mr. Hemingway has never been awarded a Nobel Prize. Of course (as Mr. Clark Griffith might say) 1951 is another year.

Another example of the committee's catholicity is the award of the prize for 1950 to Bertrand Russell, whose work has been mainly in such fields as mathematics, philosophy, politics and public affairs. It may be that he was given the prize in literature because there is no Nobel Prize in philosophy—the others being in physics, chemistry, medical and physiological research and peace. At the end of the nineteenth century, when Alfred Nobel was writing his will, almost everybody believed that a scientific formula for perpetual peace could be found if the boys only put a mind to it. But the subject of philosophy was in pretty low estate. Most of the eminent philosophers of the time were either Hegelian idealists like Professor Bosanquet—who were so abstruse that nobody could understand them and it was thought that they did not entirely understand themselves or one another—or pragmatists and positivists whose philosophy was to have no philosophy. Today, however, philosophy is almost as popular on the campuses and in taverns as it was in the Athenian agora in the years after the Peloponnesian War. And one of the most popular of contemporary philosophers is Earl Russell. His philosophy has not much in common with Plato's; but the reason for his popularity is much the same as for Plato's. Both belong to that relatively small group of philosophers who can write. Another who belongs in this group—but who has not yet been given a Nobel Prize, nor, as far as we know, even proposed for one—is George Santayana. However, the French philosopher Henri Bergson was awarded the literary prize in 1927.

Wives And Taxes

The stiffer taxes ahead may have some compensation for women in that they will further send up the value of wives and make bachelorhood more of a financial liability. Since the joint income tax law was passed, many husbands have discovered around March 15 what cash assets their wives are. Now, with more taxes to pay, wives should be increasingly valuable in reducing tax bills. Women themselves have just been reminded of their taxation value by Rene A. Wormser of the New York Institute on Federal Taxation. In a lecture (unfortunately to women only) at Town Hall, New York, sponsored by the Federation of Women Stockholders in American Business, Inc., Mr. Wormser pointed out the tax advantages of a married man as follows: he can split his income with his wife in making his tax returns; he can bestow big presents upon her, since everything a husband gives his wife is free of gift tax; he can give presents to others with her jointly, taking advantage of the gift tax exemptions given both husbands and wives.

Despite this, there has been no evidence that joint tax returns have increased marriage rates, which were slipping prior to the Korean war and the draft. However, women have not made the propaganda value out of the tax situation that might have been expected. Perhaps, as the cost of rearmament mounts in an inflationary economy, increasing numbers of bachelors of both sexes will recognize that while two cannot live as cheaply as one, two can certainly put up a stronger front to the tax collector.

Defense Dollars

Treasury experts estimate that three billion dollars of the 16½ billion dollars of additional defense appropriations voted for the fiscal year 1951 will be spent for ships, guns, tanks, etc.; 4¼ billion dollars for aircraft; 2½ billion dollars for operation and maintenance of the armed services; 1½ billion dollars for military personnel; 1¼ billion dollars for stockpiling, construction, research and other purposes, and four billion dollars to implement the military defense assistance pact. This breakdown is most enlightening. It indicates that not more than half the additional outlays so far voted for defense will be made to procure military equipment that absorbs scarce materials and to build up stockpiling. To be sure, some of the money advanced to other countries for defense purposes will be used to finance purchases of strategic materials and implements of war in the United States. But it would be futile to hazard a guess as to the amount of such buying for export.

Increased expenditures for military personnel (that is, for military pay, clothing and allowances) belong in the category of wages and salaries. As many of the men now entering the armed services have been earning much more in private employment, these increases in personnel expenditures probably will not result in a comparable increase in over-all demands for consumer goods, although there will be shifts in buying that will affect the prices of some articles. The 2½ billion dollars of additional defense appropriations allowed for operations and maintenance also includes salary payments to civilians who might be earning as much or more in private employment.

In trying to gauge the economic impact of the enlarged defense program, it is, therefore, important to remember that different kinds of defense expenditures have different effects. Some directly increase demands for particular goods and services and tend to raise their prices. In other cases the direct effect on prices may be negligible, although any enlargement of the armed forces indirectly affects the prices of all sorts of goods and services by reducing the facilities in machinery and manpower available for civilian production. And, of course, budget deficits brought about by larger military outlays of any kind have a generally inflationary effect, because deficit financing puts more money in circulation without offsetting increases in the supply of consumer goods.

Only part of the 16½ billion dollars of additional defense appropriations will be spent during the current fiscal year because of delays in placing orders and the time lag between placement and delivery of goods by contractors. During the coming months, however, the rise in military spending will gain momentum and will be proceeding at a greatly accelerated rate by next spring. Indirect confirmation of the tardy effect of increased appropriations on the cash expenditures of the Government is provided by the Treasury which expects the cash budget to show a surplus of three billion dollars in the first quarter of 1951 compared with a surplus of only half that amount in the first quarter of 1950. After then, however, spending will mount rapidly and budgetary cash deficits will begin to appear as contracts are completed and payment is called for. Then the pinch of civilian shortages will really begin to hurt, and the need for tax increases and production controls will be driven home.

Saving Our Teeth

The proposal to treat the Washington water supply with sodium fluoride as a means of reducing tooth decay is a project to which we hope the District Commissioners will give their enthusiastic approval. The effect of fluorinated or fluoridized water in controlling dental caries among children is now well established; programs are now being actively carried on in nearly 50 cities and are contemplated in many more. Dr. F. A. Bull, supervisor of dental education of the Wisconsin Board of Health, estimates that where water naturally contains one part per million or more of fluorine, decay of permanent teeth in the native born is reduced 70 percent, and that the artificial fluorination of public water supplies will prevent caries as effectively as natural fluorine water. Yet the annual cost of treating water here has been put by Dr. Harry Ostrow, the director of the dental bureau, at only $80,000.

For a long time dentists have noted that in areas where there is natural fluorine in the water there is surprisingly little tooth decay. For example, in eight Wisconsin cities with one part fluorine or more per million, the average of teeth decayed, missing or filled among eighth-grade students is 2.9 or less; in two Wisconsin cities with .05 parts fluorine per millon the average is 8.9 or higher. The encouraging thing is that cities where artificial fluoridization is being carried on are noting the same results. Moreover, with one part fluorine per million, the mottling of teeth presents little problem. According to the experience in Charlotte, N. C., a city of 135,000, the cost of installing equipment for treating the water amounts to about half a cent per capita per year and the cost of silicafluoride compound itself is 3 cents per capita per year.

Arlington Votes

There used to be a line in every high school civics textbook to the effect that citizens who don't vote "get the kind of government they deserve, and deserve the kind they get."

This simple idea ought to be pondered, on this election morning-after, by the thousands of Arlington parents who let the school bond issue be defeated because they have failed to qualify for voting in Arlington County.

One finds a lot of explanations on the part of those who decline to share civic responsibility in Arlington. Many are Federal employes who have a totally mistaken idea that shifting their vote to Virginia will hurt them under civil service apportionment rules. Others have a vague intention to return some day to their home community. Many have no excuse other than just plain inertia. Still others, through a masterpiece of self-delusion, are convinced they are striking a blow for good government by being "conscientious objectors" against the poll tax.

Whatever the reason, it should be clear today to these non-voting parents that their children are going to the schools that Arlington builds, not those built by California, New York or Oklahoma.

Only about 20 percent of the adult population of Arlington voted on the school bond issue, about 10 percent for the issue and 10 percent against. The other 80 percent stood by and watched.

The same bond issue, or another, will have to be put to the voters again within a few months. Between now and then, any person who has lived in Virginia a year can qualify to vote by paying his poll taxes before December 5 and registering with his precinct registrar. Since the bond issue lost in this election by only 400 votes, a thousand new voters would undoubtedly insure victory in the next campaign.

I hold Reed K. Pond and his citizens committee for school improvement, with their anti-Bach, pro-Dugan political campaign propaganda responsible for the defeat of school bonds in the referendum of November 7.

When school improvement groups learn to keep their school wants and issues clear of partisan politics, the people of Arlington may in time regain confidence in their once strong leadership.

Michael Hart

Many thanks for the wonderful story in your issue of October 26 regarding our son, Michael Hart, and how he recovered from burns. We attribute his miraculous recovery first to Our Lady of the Miraculous Medal and secondly to the tender and loving care he has received since the day of admission to George Washington University Hospital.

I must also pay tribute to the blood donor service of the Red Cross—only one who has needed blood can appreciate the value of this organization.

Manners And Tensions

St. John Ervine recently referred to the danger of "angry little men." When a delegate at Lake Success insists that the Chinese Communists be "summoned" rather than "invited," is he not putting himself among the number of that truly pestiferous class of "homo sapiens"?

Bolshevik Revolution

There are many things we do not like to remember, either because they are unpleasant, or we do not know much about them, or because they are embarassing to us. One of such things is the Bolshevik revolution in Russia, the thirty-third anniversary of which came on November 7.

To the eyewitness of the events in 1917 there was no definite Bolshevik or Communist revolution. The transition of power to the Soviets was really the culmination of a decaying process, which began with the revolt of February and March of the same year. We do not like to remember it now, but it is a fact that this country joined in a general chorus of approval of this revolt, and, subconsciously, of all the outrages connected with it.

Everything was blamed on the terrible and bloody Czar, who did not like his people and exiled them to Siberia or to the Bronx, although the fact was that this individual was just as harmless and as much of a figurehead as the present King of England. The first eye opener came after the Czar, his family, and millions of other innocent people were murdered by the Communists. For some time afterward, the Communists were boycotted by this Government, but when time came for most of the unusual things to triumph, the Soviets were recognized.

Our officials and others were in a hot contest trying to outdo each other by catering to these former common criminals, or at least nobodies, and it certainly contributed to their distorted opinion of themselves. Such attitude lasted throughout the World War II, but when the chips were laid down, the Soviets had a lot more of them to cash in than the United States. This final difference from the original investment represents loss by this country due to its policies of the past years.

If past mistakes are honestly and frankly admitted, their possible future sources prevented and corrective measures taken, perhaps the price will not be increased. JAMES S. SWEET.

Arlington Sewers

All of the members of the Arlington-Fairfax Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America sincerely thank you for the many hours of labor, space in your newspaper and excellent editorials all contributing to an affirmative vote November 7 on the sewage bond issue. Arlington County will now be able to build a sewage plant adequate for its population and contribute its part to abating the pollution of the Potomac River.

We all wish to take this opportunity to express our appreciation for your continued untiring efforts prior to the election. Your paper has rendered a fine public service which is very commendable.

CARL P. SANDERHOFF,
President of Arlington - Fairfax Chapter, Izaak Walton League of America.

The Macedonian Quarrel

While on his tour of Europe and Asia, Marquis Childs wrote a highly interesting article, "In Face of Danger," which appeared in your issue of October 24. In it he discussed the relations between Greece and Yugoslavia, two countries threatened by the same mortal danger, yet which, instead of cooperating with each other, "are not even on speaking terms." The reason for this deplorable situation, Mr. Childs finds, is the "rivalry over Slav Macedonia."

The phrase "Slav Macedonia" means nothing. There is a Slav race, which is made up of a number of nations — Bulgaria, Poland, Russia, Czechoslovakia, etc. — but there is no Slavic nation. The matter was discussed in the polemic which ranges between the organs of the two governments, the Messager d'Athenes for Greece and Borba for Yugoslavia. Both sides are led by distinguished publicists. Mr. Petkovitch claims in Borba that the Slavs of Macedonia are Macedonians, with the after-thought of assimilating them with the "Macedonians" of the so-called People's Federal Republic of Macedonia and of justifying Tito's ambitions. These ambitions are those of all Serbs, and aimed at Yugoslavia's rule over all of Macedonia in Greece, down to Salonki and Cavella, and as far as the Bistritza River.

Mr. Moscopulos, a former Minister of Foreign Affairs, replies in the Messager d'Athenes that the Macedonians are Bulgarians, which effectively voids all the claims that Yugoslavia could make on ethical grounds. Thus Mr. Moscopulos completes that which Mr. Childs said, and simultaneously clarifies the Macedonian quarrel, which has divided Serbs and Greeks since 1913.

However, the same quarrel divides Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, and is at the root of the present dangerous tension existing between the two countries.

When one thus extends the problem, it is easy to see that the instability on the Balkans, which are of such great importance to global peace, is tied to the fate of Macedonia, contended for during more than 50 years among its three neighbors, Bulgaria, Serbia (Yugoslavia) and Greece. This instability shall be erased, and lasting peace achieved only when these states, each of which has attempted to solve the problem by territorial annexations, finally renounce these annexations in favor of the establishment of an Independent Macedonian state. That state may be placed under their joint auspices or under United Nations supervision. This is the only constructive solution, and one which would make possible the formation, at a later date, of a great Balkan federation.

Mr. Child's suggestion for a firm American intervention in both Belgrade and Athens, in order to impose an agreement on Greece and Yugoslavia, is an impractical solution. It combats the effects, but not the cause of the trouble. The trouble is that Marshal Tito could not renounce his claims on Macedonia in Greece without dangerously weakening his position by losing the support of the Serb nationalists, whose prisoner he has been ever since he broke away from the Cominform, and without exposing himself to the direct attacks of the latter. Moscow would not miss the chance to accuse him of treason to the cause of Slavism and of collaboration with what it calls "American imperialism."

Consequently, regardless of how the Macedonian problem is viewed, the only lasting solution will have to be a national solution; that is, a Macedonian solution, carried out with due regard for the wishes of the Macedonian people, who have always been Bulgarians.

Former Bulgarian Minister to Moscow and Ankara, and former Permanent Bulgarian Delegate to the League of Nations.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The $32 Question

"THIS THING in Korea is the 32-dollar question. In about a week or 10 days we should know whether the 64-dollar question is coming up." This is how one important official, who has taken part in the secret, tense debates within the Government since the Chinese intervened in Korea, sums up the situation which now confronts this country and its allies.

The "32-dollar question" is this: Are the Chinese Communists, with the support of the Kremlin, ready for an all-out war in Korea? It must be said at the outset that no one in official Washington pretends really to know the answer to this question.

It is still considered conceivable that the minimum Chinese objective is a guarantee of unmolested access to the important hydroelectric installations on the Yalu River, and a further guarantee of the Chinese frontiers. If this is so, the Chinese move has been supremely illogical, simply because it has made attacks on Chinese territory, and the destruction of the Yalu River plants a great deal more, rather than less, likely.

Yet the timing of the Chinese move was also supremely illogical—this was one reason why Gen. Douglas MacArthur assured President Truman at Wake that the danger of intervention had passed. Thus it is at least possible that the Chinese, spurred on by the Kremlin, intervened at the last moment, in a spasm of dogma-induced fear that an invasion of China itself was planned by the "American imperialists." The fact that the Chinese forces, still transparently disguised as "volunteers," were withdrawn, instead of following up the vicious surprise attack which threw the United Nations forces off balance, tends to support this hopeful view.

THIS IS WHY frantic efforts by every means are now being made to reassure the Chinese. The course of events in the United Nations and elsewhere in the next few days will show whether or not the hopeful view is justified. But there is, unfortunately, plenty of evidence which suggests that in this situation, as so often before, the wish has been father to the thought.

The central fact is that reinforcements for the Chinese forces in Korea continue to pour across the Yalu River, while a huge army, estimated between 300,000 and half a million men, is being mobilized just across the border. There are other indications, like the attacks by the latest Soviet-made jet fighters on American planes, that the objectives of the Chinese and their Soviet allies are by no means limited. Officials here are haunted by the fear that the apparent withdrawal is no more than a regrouping, preparatory to an assault intended to cut through the center of the United Nations lines to the Sea of Japan.

If this attack occurs, it will be the signal that the Chinese Communists and their allies in the Kremlin are ready to go the whole way in Korea, whatever the consequences. It will mean, in short, that the answer to the "32-dollar question" is an ominous "yes."

In this event, certain American officials believe that the immediate military response should be an attempt to establish a firm defensive line across the narrow neck of the Korean Peninsula, north of Pyongyang, in order to gain time and at least postpone an unlimited American commitment. Yet this decision will really rest with the man on the spot, General MacArthur. It is not likely that MacArthur will favor any such passive course.

Indeed, there is reason to believe that he is now readying his forces for a general offensive, designed to throw all Chinese troops out of Korea, and that this offensive is being delayed only to give time for further negotiation in the United Nations. But as MacArthur himself has implied, such an offensive cannot succeed while the Chinese base in Manchuria remains immune from air attack. Therefore an offensive is almost sure to mean the bombing of Chinese installations and supply lines in Manchuria and probably in China proper.

ALTHOUGH THERE are differences elsewhere, there is absolute agreement on one point. If the answer to the "32-dollar question" is indeed "yes," this country will be involved in a more or less open war, against unlimited Chinese manpower. And this is a situation which the United States simply cannot afford to accept permanently.

Nothing would more delight the Kremlin than to see the United States, already desperately short on military manpower, indefinitely involved in endless and strategically pointless ground warfare on the Asiatic Continent, while the Kremlin was left free to pursue its ends elsewhere. It goes without saying that no responsible man in the Government wants a showdown with the Soviet Union, while Europe is defenseless and the United States unprepared. Yet the fact remains that if the 32-dollar question is in the affirmative, events may very soon make it necessary to ask the 64-dollar question. This is: "Do the Soviets want a third world war now?"

alize that another four years of Hoover's inept leadership, or rather complete lack of leadership, will spell disaster for the country and that Hoover will be reelected unless I am nominated; secondly, that Hoover and the Republican organization are perfectly frank among themselves in saying that Hoover can beat any other Democrat, but cannot beat me!

That point of view should be widely disseminated between now and our convention.

I hope you liked my statement about the Seabury investigation. Hope to see you soon.

As ever yours,

Dave H. Morris was another one of the small group who actively promoted Roosevelt's candidacy before Chicago. At Jesse Straus's invitation, he became treasurer of the Roosevelt Business and Professional League. F.D.R. later appointed him Ambassador to Belgium.

F.D.R. to Oswald Garrison Villard in New York:

ALBANY,
JUNE 8, 1932.

My dear Oswald:

It is as I thought—though I had hoped that in your more mature years you could find some way to be more truly useful to our country.

Your letter of May 3rd, enclosing the first article which asked a series of questions similar to the famous "Have you stopped beating your wife? Answer yes or no!" was sent to Albany, and as I was on a real vacation in Warm Springs I did not get it until just as I was leaving there. When it reached me I said to myself something like this:

"I will bet a new hat that Oswald merely published that query for rhetorical or journalistic effect and that even before I get a chance to answer him he will have a leading article damning me up and down and advising his readers to vote for Norman Thomas."

I won the bet.

I once wrote to an editor: "I suppose God, in His wisdom, feels that there are some advantages in creating people who condemn you if they don't agree with you on each and every one of the fifty-seven varieties of important political, social and economic problems—but it is hard to understand what practical value these fellows give in bringing the support of intelligent persons to public officials who are at least more honest, progressive and useful for a nation than those in power."

Probably you and I go along together on more matters of national policy than you do with any other candidate of the Republican or Democratic parties—but as you cannot see it this way, I hope that you will be thoroughly satisfied with supporting my good friend Norman Thomas. In any event, you have my best personal wishes even when as in the last issue, you come periously close to mixing opinion with false facts.

Come and see me some day, and in the meantime I don't care a rap whether you disagree with me just so long as you don't print anything misleading as to fact.

Always sincerely,

Villard, grandson of the abolitionist leader William Lloyd Garrison and editor of the liberal Nation, had published an open letter in his magazine addressed to Governor Roosevelt. The letter stated that the people were hoping for vigorous leadership and upbraided F.D.R. for not taking a fearless and unequivocal stand. It ended with fourteen questions to which Villard demanded "an honest, straightforward reply." As Villard supported Norman Thomas he must have assumed F.D.R.'s answers would be contrary to liberal thinking.

F.D.R. to Mrs. James Roosevelt (Telegram):

On Board American Airways
JULY 2, 1932.

I am writing this as we pass over "Henderson House." All well. Much love. F. D. R.

This telegram to F. D. R.'s mother was sent from the plane in which he flew out to the convention, which had just nominated him for President.

F.D.R. to Charles E. Coughlin:

ALBANY,
JULY 29, 1932.

I have received the inclosed letter, and I am sending it to you with a copy of my reply just for your information.

I do hope if you come East you will stop off in Albany to see me. I want to talk with you about many things.

Very sincerely yours,

In the "inclosed letter" a Syracuse friend had written F. D. R. that, according to his information, Father Coughlin when he resumed broadcasting in October would deal with a book on birth control which it was claimed Mrs. Roosevelt was preparing.

The writer feared such a broadcast would be damaging to F. D. R.'s candidacy. F. D. R. in his reply assured him that "There is, of course, nothing to these stories but I am taking it up with Father Coughlin, who is a friend of mine."

F.D.R. to Felix Frankfurter at Harvard (F.L.):

En Route, Roosevelt Special,
SEPT. 14, 1932

Dear Felix:

This is the first chance I have had to send you a flote and I am dictating it on the train West. You will not get it for several days.

The trouble about the Al matter is that a number of my friends went, of their own accord, to Al and he got fed up with this kind of approach. However, he knows definitely that I have stood ready to call him up or write to him suggesting a meeting. I think he wants to work it out in his own way and in his own time.

I am only fearful that the excellent news from Maine may make it a little more difficult for him, because many people will say that his support is now not so much needed. However, I think he does understand very thoroughly that I am entirely willing to go 75 percent of the way, and I hope much that the situation will be greatly clarified before our State convention.

When I left it looked as if the New York City crowd will find it more and more difficult to turn down Herbert and both Herbert and I feel much more confident of his nomination. Curry knows that I arrive back the morning of the State convention and will address the convention. I told him that the subject of my address would depend largely on the decision he makes during the next three weeks!

As ever yours,

Felix Frankfurter had written F. D. R. on September 6th, urging him to arrange a meeting with Smith before he left on his Western trip and suggesting that either John W. Davis or Frank Polk be used as an emissary for this purpose. Among the unsuccessful approaches that had been made to Smith was one by F. D. R.'s former law partner, Basil O'Connor, whose invitation to lunch with F.D.R., Smith had spurned. Smith and Roosevelt finally were reconciled, at least to the point of shaking hands, at the New York Democratic State Convention in October, where both united to put over the nomination of Herbert Lehman. Smith campaigned for Roosevelt in Connecticut and Massachusetts, where there was fear of considerable defection on the part of Irish-Catholic voters.

F.D.R. to Mrs. Charles Russell Leaycraft in Woodmere, N. Y.:

ALBANY,
NOVEMBER 2, 1932

Dear Cousin Leontine:

That is a very sweet letter of yours and I want to tell you that I very much appreciate your thought and also your support.

I saw Harry a few weeks ago in Skanateles and he is doing splendid work for me up there.

What a pity that one or two of the clan are acting in a way which one day they probably will regret. I shall never forget my father telling me in 1898 that although a lifelong Democrat he was going to vote for Theodore Roosevelt as Governor. In the same way my first presidential vote, though I was a Democrat, went to cousin Theodore in 1904.

I do hope that some day I shall have a chance to see you and thank you in person.

Gratefully yours,

Mrs. Leaycraft had recalled how, in the old days, she and F. D. R.'s father-in-law, Elliott Roosevelt, and his brother Theodore played together in New York and Oyster Bay. Since there were so few of the Oyster Bay clan who would vote for F. D. R., she wanted to assure him of her own support.

"Harry" was Henry Roosevelt, who later became Assistant Secretary of Navy under Swanson.

Although F. D. R. was annoyed at members of the Oyster Bay clan for opposing him, he had not disappointed Mrs. Roosevelt's active opposition to Theodore Roosevelt, jr., when the latter ran for Governor of New York in 1924. At Louis Howe's suggestion, she and some other ladies decked out a car with a large teapot on top (which regularly gushed live steam) and followed T. R., jr., around the State with this effective reminder of the Teapot Dome scandals.

Postlude

Fine Song Recital Presented By Doda Conrad at Phillips

By Paul Hume

Doda Conrad's song recital in the Phillips Gallery yesterday afternoon was in many ways the finest we have heard from him.

Opening and closing groups of songs were by Schumann and Schubert. If the four final Schubert songs were among the most often sung of all that master's vocal creations, the cycle by Schumann, Liederkreis, is rarely heard.

These brief Schumann settings of Heine poems contain Schumann's most original piano accompaniments, and some of his most sensitive lyrical lines. Conrad traversed them with such knowing command that they imparted their full content of tranquil romantic happiness.

Helmut Baerwald gave the piano part its full tribute in his elegantly molded playing. It was playing that moved in perfect spirit with the songs and the singer.

A new set of nine songs and piano interlude by Ned Rorem followed. The poems are from Robert Herrick, one of the most musical of British poets. Many of the lines are already famous in other settings: Cherry Ripe, To Daisies, the Epitaphs and the opening song, To Music, have been done before.

The cycle takes its title, Flight for Heaven, from the final line of the first song. They are uneven in musical worth and in interest for the listener. For some reason they become much more communicable after the first three songs. The style of the songs is one Rorem has made known in frequent earlier songs, now modified by an obviously contemporary French influence.

Except for momentary flashes, they do not create any sustained mood, or provide much opportunity for looking back to particularly happy achievements. A scherzo on the Daisies poem is a flashing exception to this situation. Conrad balanced his program with the cycle, Mouvements du Coeur, which he sang here last year. It is a set of seven songs by French composers of today. It was written at Conrad's request, to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the death of Chopin.

2000 Geologists Meeting Here

Some 2000 geologists and fellow scientists are scheduled to convene here this week in annual scientific sessions of geologists, mineralogists, and paleontologists.

Headquarters for the activities will be the Statler Hotel.

Occasion is the three-day, sixty-third annual meeting of the Geological Society of America, which begins on Thursday.

Concurrent meetings include the forty-second annual meeting of the Paleontology Society, the thirty-first assembly of the Mineralogical Society of America and the tenth annual convention of the Society of Vertebrate Palentology.

Four experts will discuss the battle against plant, animal and insect pests in a symposium tonight before the Chemical Engineers Club of Washington at 8 p. m. in the Jefferson Memorial Auditorium of the Department of Agriculture, 14th st. and Independence ave. sw.

OF BOOKS AND BRENTANO'S

War is different things to different people. To victims—it may be pain and bestiality. To parents and lovers—anguish. To drones—a bother. To the military—a study in logistics and strategy. To psychologists—universal madness. To historians—an unfolding of national and social forces. Two very important new titles—one published just today—have come into Brentano's. The subject of each book is war, the viewpoint of each detached and historical. From such stuff as these volumes will our eventual history be transcribed . . . Chronologically, the first of these is THE BLUE AND THE GRAY: THE STORY OF THE CIVIL WAR AS TOLD BY THE PARTICIPANTS (2 volumes, boxed $12.00). For ten years, Henry Steele Commager sifted diaries, official reports, and first hand accounts from both North and South, not only of the actual fighting, but of the personal side of the war too—soldier songs, the way the soldier lived, was fed and clothed, the way in which the soldier marched and fought, the way in which he died. The work is lavishly illustrated with contemporary pictures and maps to clarify the long grim struggle. For the casual reader or the student, it is an exciting social and military history of an America in turmoil, and an important study of the manner in which this nation was forged . . . Published today, and now in Brentano's, is BREAKING THE BISMARCKS BARRIER ($6.00), Volume Six in the History of United States Naval Operations in World War II. It is the fourth volume in Samuel Eliot Morison's great history to deal with naval action in the Pacific. It follows Operation "Watchtower" up from Guadalcanal and New Guinea to the taking of Rabaul and the final breaking of the Bismarcks Barrier. Here, too, is the activating of Admiral King's concept of advancing up the line of the Solomons to Timor.

Readers of the earlier volumes will know the importance of this detached and absorbing study of our Navy in its historic task.

Rival Dog Food Holds Line; No Price Increase

CHICAGO, November 13—Housewives can't buy much with a dime today, but when it comes to Rival Dog Food, the little ten cent piece still looks like its old self. The makers of Rival are holding the line on price, in spite of the fact that all the elements that go into its manufacture have increased in cost. Since dog food is an important item with millions of dog owners, it is no wonder that so many have expressed their appreciation to the Rival Packing Company for maintaining its 10c price for the full pound can, by buying in ever-increasing quantities.

Food Value, Quality Unchanged

In announcing its intention to hold the price line, the Rival Packing Company stresses the fact that the high quality of Rival remains unchanged. The same rigid standards are applied in checking the purity and food value of every ingredient that goes into Rival Dog Food. "The secret of maintaining price and quality, when manufacturing costs are rising," state Rival officials, "is large volume. America's dog owners have made that possible, by purchasing Rival at a record-breaking pace."

Production Capacity Increased

With demand for Rival Dog Food growing, it has been necessary to add to Rival's manufacturing capacity. As a result, Rival Packing Company is now constructing additional plant facilities which will greatly increase production. ADVT.

Eagles Rout Redskins for 7th Loss in Row, 33 to 0

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

GRIFFITH STADIUM, Nov. 12.—The Redskins take the field against the Eagles and it can be fearlessly reported they are not suffering from over-confidence. A crowd of 29,407 is here, including some old inhabitants who can remember that the Redskins won a game from the Eagles in 1946.

The Redskins win the toss, as Referee Jack Glascott completes the coin flip. No referee has ever had one intercepted.

POVICH

For this one, the Redskins have changed benches, taking the north side of the field and turning their backs on Owner George Marshall in his upstairs box. Perhaps they have a point there, but unfortunately it won't go up on the scoreboard.

The Redskins after giving up the ball, are being flim-flammed. Thompson completes a 30-yard pass to Steve Van Buren, of all people. It amounts to a low trick, but with their ill-gotten gain the Eagles go to the Redskins' 11-yard line.

ON FOURTH DOWN, the Eagles have a kick coming and tap Cliff Patton for the job. He boots the Eagles into a 3-0 lead from the 12-yard line. Even a bleary-eyed customer who saw two balls and two sets of goalposts could testify that one of them balls went through one set of them posts.

Sammy Baugh is quarterbacking the Redskins, and taking them nowhere. They call time out and Baugh goes to the bench for instructions, but nobody can think up anything clever, and the Redskins punt.

Tommy Thompson finds a lot of Eagles with a lot of wing-spread and takes them down field with passes, including a 20-yard pitch to Ferrante on the Redskins' 12. It was Thompson's fifth completion in six attempts, and that kind of an average will definitely keep him in the league.

Make it 6 out of 7 for Thompson, and that's why the Eagles now have a 10-0 lead. Frank Ziegler hauled in a 12-yard pitch and with nowhere to go except the goal line, he went all the way.

CHARLIE JUSTICE and Bill Dudley get untracked and give the 29,407 something to cheer about with a series of smart gallops through the Eagles' line, and the Eagles take time out to ponder the sudden turn of events. After 2 minutes of hard thinking, they line up again and are promptly stabbed by a Baugh-to-Dudley pass that carries to the Philadelphia 17.

The Redskins' charge bogs down on a play that Eddie Yost might have thought up. On a fourth down pitch, Baugh throws low and into the dirt, and the Eagles are safe.

Thompson completes a pitch to Pihos and it winds up with a grand piece of larceny by Dudley who makes the tackle and steals the ball in practically the same motion. The officials wink at the whole business which comes under the heading of justifiable thievery.

The Eagles are now acting like a team 10 points behind instead of 10 in front. On fourth down with 9 to go, Reagan goes back to punt from his own 30 except he doesn't punt. It's a magnificent fake, and Reagan scrambles 40 yards upfield before the Redskins recover from his grand element of surprise.

16-0, EAGLES. It was like this: On the Redskins' 11-yard line, Thompson handed off to Ziegler at right tackle, and then were advised by the referee that Van Buren had scored on a delayed buck through the middle.

23-0 Eagles. After an obviously unavoidable delay of 5 minutes, the Eagles score again. It took 'em that long to go 53 yards. The last 7 were negotiated by Jim Parmer off right tackle. He almost wound up in the box seats.

Justice is running in all directions with the next kickoff and when the complete return is in, we'll try to report what happened. He took the ball on his own goal line, cut to his left, reversed his field, rereversed his field, stumbled over the pitcher's mound, regained his feet, picked up two blockers, out-ran 'em, and was hauled down on the Eagles' 42.

You have the word of the big delegation of customers from North Carolina that it was the greatest run since one Charlie Justice used to do the same sort of thing for N.C.U.

THE REDSKINS didn't come within 39 yards of scoring, however, and the Eagles take over. It becomes downright humiliating for the Eagles at this point, in the fourth quarter. They are forced to punt, for the first time in the contest.

If the Redskins score now, they'll have to come up with a 99 2/3-yard drive, because Reagan's punt was downed by their good end, Jack Ferrante, on the Redskins' 1-foot line.

26-0, Eagles. They just asked Patton to kick 'em a field goal from the 22-yard line, and the way it struck Patton was anything to oblige.

Nick Sebek goes into the game as quarterback for the Redskins, and completes his first pass in the pro league. It was to Joe Sutton of the Eagles on the Redskins' 22, and Sebek is called back to the bench for a bit of advice.

33-0, Eagles. Mackrides throws an 18-yard touchdown pass to Ledbetter who gives Al DeMao the slip, and that's the final score, with the Eagles merely proving they are 40 points weaker than the Chicago Bears of 1940.

DUDLEY DOES—DUDLEY DOESN'T—Like the rest of the Redskins, Bill Dudley had his troubles against the Philadelphia Eagles yesterday. On the left, Dudley (35) is about to haul in a 10-yard pass from Sammy Baugh (33) during an abortive Redskins' second-quarter drive. Russ Craft is the Eagle about to crash in on Baugh. On the right, Dudley is all set to catch another Baugh pass in the second quarter, but this time Joe Muha, of the Eagles, leaps in to bat it down. The Eagles dealt the Redskins their seventh straight loss, 33 to 0

Van Buren's 108 Yards Top Losers' Total by 23

They hung up Sammy Baugh's number—33—on the Griffith Stadium scoreboard yesterday, but not in tribute to the veteran passing star.

It showed, instead, the margin by which the powerful Philadelphia Eagles had slapped down the Redskins again—33 to 0.

Against an already battered team which was trying to snap a six-game losing streak, Coach Greasy Neale's defending pro champions had one of their best days of the season in running their personal winning streak over the Redskins to eight straight over a four-year period.

Leading only by 10-0 at half time, the Eagles broke the game wide open after intermission. They scored two touchdowns in the third period, and another 6-pointer plus Cliff Patton's second field goal in the fourth quarter.

Van Buren Outgains Redskins

The Redskins went into the game with Pete Stout definitely out and Harry Gilmer and Bob Hendren on the doubtful list. They came out of it burdened not only by their seventh consecutive loss but with seven more injured players.

Tackle Lauri Niemi, with a possible fractured leg; Baugh, back sprain; Guard John Steber, ankle; Center Harry Ulinski, likewise; End Danny Brown, shoulder; End Roland Dale, knee injured, and Halfback Hall Haynes, shoulder, had to be helped from the field.

It is doubtful if a Redskin team at full strength would have been able to cope with the almost-perfect Philadelphians yesterday.

They gained 474 yards running and passing and their defense was so superb the Redskins gained only 127 yards. Steve Van Buren, running with his punishing power again, outgained the Redskins on the ground himself, running up 108 yards on 23 carries while the Redskins budged the Eagles' line for only 85 yards.

Only twice were the Redskins able to advance the ball into Eagle territory. One of these excursions was a magnificent 59-yard kickoff return by Charlie Justice which gave the 29,407 partisans their only moment to cheer.

Ledbetter Catches Choo-Choo

Justice's brilliant run came midway the third quarter when the Eagle lead was 23-0. He reversed his field twice and had run away from every Eagle defender except one—Halfback Toy Ledbetter, who finally nailed the cannon-balling Choo-Choo on the Eagles' 41-yard line. Needless to say, the Redskins passed up the scoring chance.

The only streak not perpetuated at Griffith Stadium was Patton's extra-point kicking skein. The big guard failed to convert after the Eagles' third touchdown, in-

Bears Knock Yanks Out of Lead, 28 to 20

Two Rookies Lead Way

Chicago Pulls Into Tie for 2d Place

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 (AP).—Touchdowns by a pair of Southern rookies stirred up a last-half Chicago Bear rally today which defeated the New York Yanks, 28-20, and pulled the Yanks from the National Football League's division lead into a second-place tie with the Bears.

The victory, before 50,103 wildly cheering fans in Wrigley Field, was the Bears' sixth in eight starts.

The torrid Yanks with a five-game victory string snapped now have a 6-2 standing, toppling them from the lead into a tie with the Bears of the National Conference. The Los Angeles Rams, by beating Green Bay, climbed into the bracket's lead with 7-2.

Avenging their 38-27 loss to the Yanks in New York two weeks ago, the Bears had to fight from a 14-7 halftime deficit to gain their choicest triumph of the campaign. Two touchdowns in the third period and a clincher in the fourth brought the upsurge.

Lujack vs. Ratterman

Although Johnny Lujack of the Bears and New York's George Ratterman—Lujack's former understudy at Notre Dame—were locked in a brilliant aerial show, it remained for two Chicago rookies, end John O'Quinn of Wake Forest and Halfback Chuck Hunsinger of Florida, to paint the final touches to a great football game.

O'Quinn stole Ratterman's "gamble" pass thrown from his own end zone at the outset of the third period and streaked 5 yards for a touchdown.

In the first 4½ minutes of the final quarter, Hunsinger's running featured a 46-yard drive which he capped by ramming over from the 2.

While Ratterman heaved 49 and 44-yard touchdown tosses, Lujack scored on a quarterback sneak—his tenth touchdown on the ground for the season—and booted four extra points. This brought his league leading total to 91 points.

Ratterman completed 12 out of 28 pitches for 210 yards. Lujack hit on 10 out of 19 for 120.

The Yanks grabbed a 7-0 first-quarter lead on Ratterman's 49-yard passing play to Jack Russell to end an explosive 81-yard surge in six plays. Chet Adams added the first of his two conversions.

The Bears tied the score at 2:05 of the second period on an 80-yard drive in 10 plays that Lujack climaxed with a two-yard quarterback sneak.

After the Yanks had been stopped on the Bear 3, they took a 14-7 edge on Ratterman's toss to Dan Edwards in a scoring play good for 44 yards.

At the start of the third, Ratterman tried to pass from the end zone and O'Quinn snatched it.

With four minutes left in the third. Julie Rykovich blasted over from the three to complete a 79-yard Bear touchdown assault.

The Bears ballooned the margin to 28-14 on Hunsinger's 2-yard slash in the fourth. Then the Yanks scored on a 56-yard march in eight plays with George Taliaferro going over from the 7.

Giants Run Over Cardinals, 51-21

Conerly, Roberts Sparkle

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP).—Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts and Passing Chuck Conerly led the New York Giants to a 51-21 victory over the Chicago Cardinals today in a National Football League game. The Giants scrapped the "T" formation and returned to their old single wing for the occasion.

It was the largest point total amassed by the Giants since they whipped Philadelphia's Eagles, 56-0, in 1933, and it came at the expense of the team that checked them with a mere field goal in the Cards' 17-3 triumph in Chicago two weeks ago.

Roberts, starting in place of the injured Forrest Griffith at the left-half post, scored two of the Giants' seven touchdowns as he established a new Giant record by gaining 218 yards in 26 tries. The old mark of 188 yards was set by Bill Paschal against the Washington Redskins in 1943.

The victory, witnessed by a crowd of 22,380 paid, kept the Giants in the thick of the race for the American Conference championship. They are tied with the Eagles for second place, a half game behind the Cleveland Browns.

Conerly, obviously more comfortable in his first love, the single wing, completed 10 of 20 passes for 234 yards. The former Mississippi star fired two touchdown passes. One went to Bill Swiacki in the third period. The other was caught by Bob McChesney in the final frame. Each scoring play covered 38 yards.

Roberts' touchdowns came in the second and third periods. Both were the result of long runs. He ran 62 yards for his first score, 35 yards for the second.

Joe Scott, on a 18-yard breakthrough, Jim Ostendorp on a 23-yard end run, and Dick Woodard, on a recovered fumble in the end zone, accounted for the other Giants touchdowns. Ray Poole, who converted six of seven placements, also added a 20-yard field goal.

Browns Turn 49ers Miscues Into 34-13 Win

CLEVELAND, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Cleveland Browns converted two fumbles and an intercepted pass into touchdowns today to defeat the San Francisco 49ers, 34 to 14, before 28,786 fans in a National Football League game.

The victory kept the Browns at the top of the American Division of the pro loop.

The 49ers outgained the Browns, 291 yards to 229, but inept ball handling cost the West Coast team the victory. The payoff was that Joe Perry, the 49ers' fullback, fumbled five times and the Browns picked up four of his miscues along with two others.

The big margin came in the closing minutes when the Browns moved for two quick touchdowns after taking a 20-to-14 lead midway in the quarter on the second of Lou Groza's placekicks.

Golden-toed Groza came up with the first of his placements, a 22-yarder in the third session, after Tony Adamle had recovered Perry's fumble on the 27.

The three-pointer broke a 14-14 tie and proved the winning gesture, the second straight week that Groza had pulled a game out of the fire for the four-time all America Conference champions. A week ago his field goal defeated the Cricago Cardinals, 10 to 7.

San Francisco's misfortunes started early, a 75-yard, 11-play attack bogging down on the Browns' 4 when Perry fumbled and Marion Motley recovered for the Browns.

The Westerners scored quickly, however, when tackle Ray Collins blocked Horace Gillon's attempted punt from the end zone and quarterback Frankie Albert sneaked over from the 1-foot line for a touchdown.

The Browns squared the score when Forrest Grigg recovered Sam Cathcart's fumble on the 49ers' 7-yard line and Otto Graham hit Dub Jones in the end zone for the score.

The Browns moved out front in the second period when Motley went 34 yards on two cracks at the line to score. But the 49ers tied it with 32 seconds to go when they moved 65 yards in five plays for a touchdown, Albert passing 28 yards to Allyn Bealse for the score.

Rams Go Into Lead, Sock Packers, 45-14

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Los Angeles Rams rode easily into the National Division leadership of the National Football League today, crushing the Green Bay Packers, 45-14, as the Chicago Bears defeated the New York Yanks at Chicago.

The Rams cashed four Green Bay errors for touchdowns, another for a field goal and added a pair of scores on their own in gaining their seventh victory in nine league starts. The Bears victory left them tied in second place with the Yanks, with 6-2 marks.

Green Bay's touchdowns came in the final minutes on passes from Tobin Rote to Larry Coutre and Al Baldwin as most of the 20,456 fans were filing out the park.

The Packers slapped the shackles on Norm Van Brocklin, the league's top passer, limiting him to one completion in 11 pitches, that for a touchdown, but Bob

Quantico's Le Baron Player of the Week

EDDIE LEBARON, Quantico Marines' great little quarterback, is the Touchdown Club and Washington Post Player of the Week. That same thing could be said most any week.

The former College of Pacific Little All-American, who would be starring right now with the Washington Redskins if he hadn't been in the organized Marine Corps reserve, has led Quantico to a brilliant 8-1 record.

Ed LeBaron

LeBaron matches his phenomenal passing with smart field generalship a second lieutenant can be proud of. It can be illustrated quickly by pointing to a few of the plays in Quantico's 42-7 triumph over Camp Lejeune.

Of course he didn't have the horses, but Lejeune's Harry Agganis hardly came close to LeBaron in what was billed as a great offensive duel between the two.

Eddie pitched for two touchdowns, directed all the scores and completely flabbergasted Lejeune by taking a 17-yard toss from Bill Hawkins for the final 6-pointer.

At that point, LeBaron was just being cute. And all the Marines in Butler Stadium roared their approval. Eddie slipped his backfield into a variation of the old Notre Dame box and Hawkins took a lateral on the play. Completely unnoticed, the 5-foot-7 quarterback slipped down the sidelines and waltzed into the end zone with a 17-yard touchdown.

It was only the second pass Navy's Bill Hawkins had thrown all season. Early in the game, LeBaron crossed up Lejeune with another unorthodox play. With second down on Lejeune's one, Eddie looped a scoring pass to Bob Farrell.

With LeBaron, it isn't merely a matter of calling smart plays. He makes them even smarter with his deceptive ball-handling from the T-formation.

Rams Push Into Lead On 45-14 Win

Waterfield took up the slack with a pair of scoring passes and Glenn Davis tossed another in the shellacking.

All told, the Rams completed 15 of 39 passes for 283 yards. Rote connected on 11 of 40 for 200 yards and the lone Packer scores, while Paul Christman was wild on three heaves.

Green Bay errors led to all three touchdowns and Waterfield's 32-yard field goal in the first half. Gil Bouley recovered Bill Grimes' fumble to pave the way for the three-pointer in the first quarter.

In the second, Waterfield hit Tom Fears on a 53-yard pass play after Don Paul had intercepted one of Christman's passes. He did the same for 28 yards with Elroy Hirsch after Hirsch had grabbed a Rote toss, and Dick Hoerner slammed through the middle from the 13 after Dick Huffman had recovered a Rote fumble.

Los Angeles drove 68 yards for its next touchdown, Van Brocklin connecting for the only time all day on a 28-yard toss to Hirsch, but went back to the easy way for the next one, Woodley Lewis snatching a fumble by Breezey Reid at midfield and skipping down the sidelines. The final Ram marker came when Davis, knocked off his feet far behind the line of scrimmage, got up and fired 50 yards to Tommy Kalminar, all alone at the goal line.

Waterfield booted five Ram conversions and Hirsch the sixth.

St. John's Wins, 41-6

St. John's overpowered Devitt Prep, 51-6, yesterday at St. John's for its eighth straight victory without a defeat. Tom Clark led the winners with two touchdowns.

Devitt scored only in the first quarter, when George Renard threw 10 yards to Lee Brinson.

Most spectacular play of the game occurred in the second quarter when Shannon picked up a Devitt fumble, at the Devitt 12, raced to the St. John's 35, and when tackled, lateraled to end Jack Daly, who ran the remaining 35 yards for the score. The play totaled 89 yards.

Tom Collins scored for St. John's from 8 yards out on a pitchout in the first quarter. After a drive of 80 yards, Tom Clark ran 10 yards for the second score.

In the third quarter, Bill Ryland bulled his way 18 yards to give St. John's a 27-6 lead.

After a pass interception by Dan Cookman, Bill Reese threw 7 yards to End Bill Gaskins for the final St. John's touchdown. Joe Hands booted four St. John's conversions.

Tittle Clicks On 23 Out of 42 Passes

By Jim Holton

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Steelers, led by chunky Joe Geri, corralled the Baltimore Colts, 17-7, today before 24,141 freezing fans at Forbes Field.

Baltimore's Y. A. Tittle completed 23 passes in 42 attempts to grab individual honors in the National Football League contest.

Geri, who up to today was the league's No. 3 passer, connected for 5 in 12 tries. His teammate, Joe Gasparella, completed two—including a razzle dazzle play that set up the Steelers' second touchdown—in four attempts.

The Steelers, with fleet halfback Lynn Chandnoois pacing the attack, rushed to the Baltimore 30 early in the first period. Geri dropped back to his 37 and booted a field goal—his eighth of the year—for Pittsburgh's first three points.

Later in the same period, Chandnois and Geri drove the Steelers to the Baltimore 15, where Fran Rogel, former Penn State star, slashed through right guard for a touchdown.

Lateral Sets Up Score

Gasparella's pass play began on the Baltimore 37. It went to Bobby Gage, who lateralled to Elbie Nickel. Nickel was thrown out of bounds on the 1. Gage plunged over on the next play.

The Colts began to gallop in the third period. With Tittle whipping short passes to Frank Spaniel, Paul Salata and Chet Mutryn, the Colts marched 84 yards in 14 plays to a touchdown. The score came on a 15-yard off-tackle jaunt by Spaniel.

Baltimore's second-half recovery was reflected in the statistics. In the first half the Colts compiled only seven first downs to the Steelers' nine. In the third and fourth periods the visitors notched 13 to Pittsburgh's 6.

Chandnois Sprints 62 Yards

Johnny Michelosen's Steelers overpowered the Colts throughout the first quarter. Baltimore tried to get an attack coing three times but failed to click. One drive started on the Colt 23 and wound up three plays later with a five-yard deficit.

Baltimore penetrated Pittsburgh territory for the first time early in the second period and drove to the Steeler 20 where Pittsburgh took over on downs. But Geri was forced to quick kick when his teammates failed to get going.

Play swirled about midfield the remainder of the half until the Steeler exploded into their second touchdown offensive just before halftime.

Baltimore started right into its long scoring drive as the third quarter opened. Chandnois came up with the game's most spectacular play on the kickoff after the Colts scored. He scooped up the ball on his own 10 and scampered 62 yards to Baltimore's 28 where he was pushed out of bounds.

Geri's Goal Steeler Record

Jerry Nuzum, Geri and Rogel pushed to the 13. But there Geri fumbled on a reverse play and the Colt's Don Colo recovered. Adrian Burk punted to his own 46 and the Steelers made another try for a scoring drive. But Pittsburgh got no closer than the 32. Three more plays found the Steelers pushed back to the Baltimore 45. Geri then punted to the Colt 10 as the quarter ended.

Ft. Wayne Beats Caps With Ease

Special Dispatch to The Post

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Nov. 12.—The Washington Caps dropped an 87-73 decision to the Fort Wayne Zollners here tonight in their National Basketball Association game. Fred Scolari was high for the Caps with 14 points. Fred Schaus topped both teams with 19.

Washington started a lineup composed of Ace Maughan, Earl Lloyd, Don Otten, Frank Kudelka and Fred Scolari. They immediately fell behind, 5-0. The Caps' pivot game wasn't working and Chuck Halbert replaced Don Otten.

Shots by Lloyd and Maughan pulled the Caps up to 5-4 and they battled closely through the rest of the period. Johnny Oldham kept the Caps behind with three nice field goals. Fort Wayne led at the end of the period, 17-13.

The Pistons started the second period with a flurry of baskets and ran their lead to 26-17. Curly Armstrong came off the Fort Wayne bench and hit three in a row.

Fred Scolari finally scored for the Caps with a one handed toss. With the score 35-29 Fort Wayne started another scoring spree, led by Duane Klueh, who hit three times. The Caps, making only four field goals in the second period, trailed at the half, 49-33.

Lloyd scored for Washington as the third period opened, but the Pistons came back with four straight baskets, taking a lead of 55-35.

Sharman scored from the floor and then dropped in two free throws. Lloyd, who had been playing fine ball for the Caps was taken out with four fouls against him.

Dan Lyons Wins

Dan Lyons won the men's novice foils championship yesterday at the YMCA in a meet sponsored by the Washington Fencer's Club. Lyons was undefeated in five tests.

Dr. Richard Iskraut, with four victories and one defeat, was second.

Justice and Reagan Make Long Runs

terrupting a string of 45 perfect conversions over a two-season period. On this same field, he missed trying for his 84th consecutive attempt last year.

The Eagles, tied for second place in the NFL's American Conference with six successes in eight starts, rang the scoreboard bell on sorties ranging from 23 yards to 72 yards.

The Philadelphians intercepted five Washington passes and touchdowns followed after two of them. Another score came after one of the four Redskins' fumbles the champs reclaimed.

Reagan's Run Fools Redskins

The play that converted the ball game into a rout came shortly following the second-half kickoff which Frankie iZegler legged back to the Eagles 28-yard line.

On fourth down on their own 30 and needing 7 yards to move the sticks, the Eagles disdained the punt. Instead, Frank Reagan, the old Penn star and Eagles' punting specialist, electrified the crowd and the Redskins by faking a kick and racing 40 yards to the Redskins' 30-yard line.

That swept the Redskins off their collective feet. On three tries, Van Buren and Ziegler swept to a touchdown, with Van Buren going the last 11 yards on a powerful thrust off tackle to make it 16-0.

Two minutes later, the Eagles struck again with the bruising Van Buren and the swift-heeled Ziegler running over, through and around the dazed, battered, tired Redskins. Van Buren, on a neat reverse, carried 19 yards to the Redskins' 8-yard line and then his sub, Jim Parmer, plowed over tackle for 8 yards and a touchdown on the next play.

Eagles Seldom Punt

The Eagles' offense was clicking so smoothly they didn't have to punt until early in the final period and when Reagan finally kicked, it quickly set up a Patton field goal.

Reagan's kick was downed on the Redskins' one-yard line and the Redskins couldn't get out of the hole. Harry Gilmer, making his first appearance since being injured against these same Eagles three weeks ago, saw Russ Craft intercept his pass thrown from behind the goal line, on the Redskins' 20. On third down, the incredible Patton split the uprights for a 22-yard field goal and a 26-0 Eagles' lead.

Nick Sebek, replacing Gilmer who had to come in when Sammy Baugh sprained his back in the second quarter had his second pass intercepted by Joe Sutton on the Redskins' 22-yard line. Four plays later, it was touchdown Philadelphia again as Quarterback Bill Mackrides who relieved Tommy Thompson in the fourth period connected with Ledbetter for an 18-yard touchdown.

Patton's 12-yard field goal in the first period wound up a 51-yard Eagle excursion the first time they got the ball.

Thompson, who connected on five of the first six passes he threw to Pete Pihos and Van Buren, hit Ziegler in the end zone for a 12-yard touchdown pay to make it 10-0 a bare six seconds after the second quarter opened.

This culminated a 30-yard movement, set in motion when Joe Muha recovered a Charlie Justice fumble on the Redskins' 30-yard line.

Except for Justice's kickoff return, the only other time the Redskins drove into Eagle territory under their own steam was in the second quarter. Justice and Dudley, who powered what little offense the Redskins were able to muster against that man-eating Eagle line, moved them 67 yards to the Eagles' 16, where a fourth-down Baugh pass failed, giving the Eagles the ball.

The Eagles controlled the ball so often they ran 77 plays against the Redskins 47.

Gonzaga Beats Little Hoyas

Four touchdowns were scored in four minutes yesterday as Gonzaga defeated Georgetown Prep, 20-7, at the Georgetown University Stadium.

Four minutes before the first half ended, Tom Cody passed 34 yards to Ralph Brahm for the Eagles' first touchdown. Then Georgetown Prep Back Paul Eckrich matched it on the next play by taking the kickoff back 75 yards for a score.

On the first play from scrimmage after the next kickoff, Cody repeated with another touchdown toss to Brahm, this time for 60 yards.

After taking the kickoff, Georgetown Prep could not gain and had to kick. On the next play, the Cody-Brahm combination clicked for the third time with a 66-yard pass play for a touchdown.

Perfect Records Will Be Scarce in Bowls

By Will Grimsley

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—Perfect records will be scarce as hen's teeth in the January 1 bowl games and, as matters stand now, the post-season business will add little light to the scramble for national honors.

Of the seven major teams able to answer to the roll call of unbeaten and untied, two—Army and Princeton—are allergic to bowls and a third—Oklahoma—appears to have had enough of them.

Oklahoma authorities, in announcing opposition to a post-season game this year, left the way open, however, for the players themselves to make the final choice. So don't be alarmed to see the Sooners around New Year's Day.

If not, that leaves Kentucky, California, Wyoming and Loyola of California as unblemished bowl prospects, with the latter two boasting of unusually strong teams but unimposing schedules.

Here's how we'd rate major bowl possibilities going into the November stretch:

Virtual cinch—California.

Strong bets—Kentucky, Wisconsin, Texas.

Good bets—Illinois, Tennessee, Clemson, Miami, Fla.

Fair bets—Southern Methodist. Washington and Lee, Wyoming, Loyola, Nebraska.

California's Golden Bears, for all practical purposes, locked up their third straight Rose Bowl bid by overwhelming UCLA yesterday, 35-0.

It was the thirty-second straight regular season triumph for the Bears under wise old Pappy Waldorf—a better record than Oklahoma's string were it not for two setbacks in the Pasadena classic.

The Bears play non-conference San Francisco next Saturday and then have to take care of Stanford November 25 to clinch their third Pacific Coast Conference championship in a row.

California's foe probably will hinge on the outcome of the big Ohio State-Illinois battle Saturday at Champaign, Ill., the weekend's headline attraction.

Illinois, beaten only by Wisconsin, must upset the favored Buckeyes to rate a chance. If the Illini bow, Wisconsin would need only to conquer Minnesota two weeks hence to gain the nod.

The Wisconsin Badgers gave second-ranking Ohio State a tremendous struggle before bowing yesterday, 19-14, while Illinois was spanking Iowa, 21-7. Ohio State is ineligible to return to the Rose Bowl under existing rules.

Kentucky, No. 4 nationally, took another stride toward the Southeastern Conference crown and Sugar Bowl by walloping Mississippi State, 48-21, for its ninth in a row. But after North Dakota this week the Wildcats play rugged Tennessee, and the Vols stand a good chance of wrecking Kentucky.

Tennessee, beaten only by Mississippi State, probably would rate the New Orleans bid if it could halt Babe Parilli and his companions.

Texas, 27-20 conqueror of Baylor, could already be making plans to play in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas were it not for the November 30 game with Texas A. & M. The Aggies, beaten only by Baylor, smacked SMU, 25-20, to remain definitely in the Southwest race. It was the second straight reversal for the Mustangs, until a week ago rated No. 1.

If Oklahoma chooses to play, it probably can have its pick of the Sugar, Cotton and Orange bowls. The Sooners, trailing for three quarters, exploded four touchdowns in the final period to whip aroused Kansas, 33-13, for their twenty-eighth in a row. They play Missouri next and then run against Nebraska and the redoubtable Mr. Bob Reynolds.

Tonight

Keene Fights Wright at Turners

Tonight will be important for Julian Keene, local light heavyweight who has been mentioned for a fight against Champion Joey Maxim.

Keene meets Chubby Wright of Reading, Pa. in a 10-rounder at Turner's Arena tonight. The local boy is a 7-5 underdog in the betting and if he gets by Wright his stock is bound to rise.

Wright holds victories over Sipio Lofton, Dick Wagner, and Georgie Small in fights at Madison Square Garden. His manager, Lou Myers, claims that Wright has to do most of his fighting in the heavyweight class because the light heavys want no part of his "hard-hitting" boy.

In the semifinal, Roland Randall meets Harry Koonce in a five-round match. Both are light-heavyweights. Koonce has been selected by Ring Magazine as the prospect of the month.

Another five-rounder lists Kenny Leach, Baltimore lightweight, and Bernard Boxdale, Washington, and a trio of four-rounders schedule lightweights Jimmy Sewell and Paddy Bullock, and Ape Kaiser vs. Young Satan, and Billy Roach vs. Kid Toy, all welterweights.

Rickey May Decide Meyer's Status Today

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12 (AP).—Branch Rickey, baseball's wonderman who a few days ago became general manager and executive vice president of thePittsburgh Pirates, is expected to decide tomorrow whether Billy Meyer will be retained as field manager.

Rickey is coming here from New York for a meeting with Meyer. Meyer still has another season to go on his $40,000 a-year contract.

Vets, Trinidad Tie

The Irish War Veterans played a scoreless tie with the Trinidad Boys Club unlimited football team at Fort Belvoir, Va., yesterday.

Detroit Socks Duquesne

DETROIT, Nov. 12 (AP).—Jocko and Jim O'Leary, a pair of fleet-footed brothers from Chicago, combined their talents for four touchdowns today as they paced the University of Detroit to a lopsided 47-14 decision over Duquesne University.

Jocko, a senior, thrilled a slender homecoming crowd of 7129 as he scored three times—on a 71-yard pass play, a 40-yard pass play and a 35-yard run. His sophomore brother, Jim, got into the act by romping 30 yards with another touchdown pass.

The O'Learys had to share laurelse with another Chicagoan as Quarterback Dick Neveux of Chicago completed 13 of 19 passes for 309 yards and three touchdowns.

The Titans scored in every period as the yrang up the highest total they have registered since 1941.

Duquesne	0	7	7	0	—14
Detroit	13	14	7	13	—47

Duquesne scoring: Touchdowns—Lonsmore, Boucher. Conversions—Brets 2.
Detroit scoring: Touchdowns—Jack O'Leary 3, Jim O'Leary, Neveux, Costello, Koster. Conversions—Cipparone 5.

Hyattsville Jolts Mount Rainier

Hyattsville, led by Archie Gonsalves' two touchdowns, defeated Mount Rainier, 40-12, in a Prince Georges County League game Saturday night at College Park. Jim Long, Wayne Adams, Sonny Alsop and Don Barr also scored for the victors.

Marty Gallagher and Bob Becker tallied for Mount Rainier, Gallagher on a 67-yard run. Hyattsville has won three games and lost one, and Mount Rainier is 1-2 in league competition.

High Prep

Players of the Week

JOE HARDING
Rockville High

Rockville Halfback Joe Harding, a leader who leads, is the High School Player of the Week selected by the Touchdown Club and The Washington Post.

Harding, captain of the team, set the example in Rockville's surprising, 28-0, upset of Bethesda by scoring three of its four touchdowns. The 17-year-old senior got Rockville under way at the start of the second quarter by bursting loose for a 50-yard touchdown.

Rockville never lost its momentum and Harding plunged over for two of the other three scores. Throughout the game, Harding was making the important yardage for the first downs that kept his team moving.

In addition to captaining the football team, young Harding is president of the student council.

Last Friday wasn't the first time the football team has profited by Harding's leadership qualities. In the Gaithersburg game, when his team was down, 6-0, Harding threw a 40-yard jump pass to set up the touchdown that eventually gave Rockville a 7-6 victory.

Joe Bride, sportswriter of the Tide, the school paper, reports that Harding and his teammates really had the town of Rockville "roaring" after their big victory.

Bethesda, with 1300 students, went into the game a two-touchdown favorite over Rockville, with its 250 students.

The victory was the fourth for Rockville against only two defeats.

BILL BIRD
Sidwell Friends

Sidwell's Bill Bird had to dash into the end zone four times to register the two touchdowns that make him the Touchdown Club and The Washington Post's Prep School Player of The Week.

Bird, a fleet 170-pounder, registered touchdown runs of 60 and 30 yards to lead Sidwell to a 14-7 victory over Baltimore Friends to its first victory in its last game of the season.

Prior to shaking loose on the runs that counted, Bird went for dashes of 75 and 35 yards only to have the touchdowns nullified by penalties. He didn't let the whistle-tooting discourage him.

Sidwell Coach Al Haringer thinks his boy Bird is one of the finest backs he's ever seen around Washington. And the former GW player has been here since 1936.

"Bird has been just about our whole offense," Halinger said. Then he recounted his 90-yard touchdown on a kickoff return against St. James and his 40-yard scoring jaunt against Landon. In that game he also took a pass 70 yards to the Landon 8 to set up another six-pointer.

Bird is a quarter-miler who's been timed in 53.5 and is a good performer with the javelin and in the broad jump. Shortly, he plans to take up soccer.

He's the son of Army Col. John F. Bird, with the Joint Chiefs of Staff office in the Pentagon. And his father is anxious to have him attend the United States Military Academy.

Billy's a growing 170-pounder and it couldn't make Coach Earl Blaik too unhappy if he arrives on the Army scene.

Terps Shoot For 4th Title InRowToday

By Gordon Beard

The University of Maryland's crack cross-country team, unbeaten in 27 meets since 1946, will be after its fourth consecutive Southern Conference championship this afternoon at Raleigh, N. C.

Since being beaten by Navy, 21-34, at the start of the 1946 season, the Terp harriers have captured 23 dual meets and an invitation run, in addition to the three conference titles.

Coach Jim Kehoe expects tomorrow's 12-school battle to be the toughest since he became head mentor in 1947.

Lost Top Runner

Kehoe's concern can be traced to the loss of his ace harrier, Bob Palmer, who was called into active service with a D. C. National Guard unit in September.

Palmer was undefeated in three years of competition, finshing first or tieing for first in 14 dual meets and winning three conference crowns. He set seven course records during the skein, once breaking the William and Mary College mark by an amazing 1 minute and 40 seconds.

"With Palmer back we would have an outstanding squad, without him, we are just good," Kehoe said. "We lack depth—if one of our first five boys are injured, we're sunk."

Despite his pessimistic outlook, the Terp coach still has a potent one-two punch in Lindy Kehoe and Tyson Creamer, who tied for first in three dual meets this year. In the other two, Kehoe took first rison, who set a 4-mile-course

For Maryland, Creamer was second.

Garrison Tar Heel Star

Behind these two stars, Maryland has a trio of consistent point-scorers in Bob Browning, Al Buehler and Jim Harris. Rounding out the maximum eight-man squad are Wiley Miller, Tony Farrera and Don Carruth.

North Carolina State pins its hopes on Shophomore Bobby Garrison, who set a four-mile-course record of 20:38 at Raleigh last week, and Bob Leonard and Wilfred Keenan, who finished twelfth and fourteenth in the championships last year.

For Maryland, Cramer was second in 1949, Harris tenth and Browning fifteenth. Kehoe, bothered by pains or "stitches" in his side, trailed far behind. The first five finishers for each school count in the point totals, low score winning.

Marines Win Sailing; Navy 3d Colonials Fourth

KINGS POINT, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP).—The United States Merchant Marine Academy won the two-day Nevins Memorial Sailing Trophy today, scoring 52 points to beat out Princeton University.

Navy followed with 144 and then came George Washington, 135; Webb Institute, 123; Cornell, 86; New York State Maritime College, 82; Yale, 69, and Hobart, 65.

Joe Quinn of Kinspspoint won individual honors with 79 points.

Western Win Could Solve Problems

The principals of Eastern and Anacostia will meet with the heads of the Interhigh Football League today to decide what happens if the Group I championship race winds up in a tie Friday.

A tie is likely between Eastern and Anacostia. Eastern finished its group schedule Saturday with a 26-7 victory over Western and boosted its record to five wins and a tie.

Anacostia has won four, tied one and lost none and can move into a tie for the group title if it beats Western as expected Friday. The Anacostia-Western game will be played at Western.

An upset victory for Western would get the Interhigh officials off the hook by giving Eastern the crown, and the right to play McKinley Tech in the city-wide championship game, November 24, at Griffith Stadium. The game is under the sponsorship of The Washington Post, the Touchdown Club and the Board of Education.

A tie in the Group I race might necessitate a special Eastern-Anacostia playoff a week from tomorrow. That would place Anacostia at a disadvantage.

Eastern is idle this week. It would have a 10-day rest before clashing with Anacostia. Anacostia, on the other hand, would have to play Western Friday and Eastern only four days later. If Anacostia won both, it would meet Tech on the following Friday in the big game.

In other words, Anacostia would have to play three games within a week.

It seems to be an impossible situation. Anyway, Eastern's principal, John P. Collins, and Anacostia Principal Mrs. Opal Coraery will talk it over with Birch Bayh and Hardy Pearce, head of the league, this morning.

Shoemaker Rides 2 More Winners, Then Gets Hurt

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Nov. 12 (AP).—An injury today interrupted Jockey Willie Shoemaker's record-breaking pace for America's 1950 Jockey Championship.

Shoemaker's foot was caught against the starting gate when Mosaic, his eighth mount of the day, reared completely over.

Attendants at the track hospital said no bones appeared to be broken in the badly bruised foot. Shoemaker was taken to San Diego for X-ray examination. He had planned to ride in 10 races today.

The 19-year-old El Paso, Tex., rider, had increased his 1950 victories to 326 with two wins—on Air Terror in the first race and on Fun Fair in the fourth—before the accident.

Hill Prince Horse of Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP).—Virginia-Bred Hill Prince was named "horse of the year" today in the Daily Racing Form's annual poll.

Christopher T. Chenery's crack 3-year-old was an overwhelming choice of 31 editors, handicappers, trackmen and newsmen who participated in the vote.

The Virginia colt won triple honors, also being named the best 3-year-old colt and the best 3-year-old, regardless of sex.

Although second to Middleground in the Kentucky Derby, Hill Prince won his title largely on stake victories in the Experimental Handicap No. 1, Wood Memorial, Withers, Preakness, American Derby, Jerome and Jockey Club Gold Cup.

In the Jockey Club Gold Cup he beat Noor, the mighty Irish-bred sensation from the Pacific Coast. Noor was named the year's best handicap horse.

In 12 starts during the year, Hill Prince was first seven times, second twice and third once.

Bill Bennings Says:

DEAR FOLKS: AT PIMLICO

One stake remains to be decided before the Maryland Jockey Club's fall meeting comes to a close on Friday. (Bowie opens Saturday). That stake is an important one—The Pimlico Futurity—which annually places its winners among the likely candidates for three-year-old honors the following season. Friday's field for the mile and a sixteenth fixture may run anywhere from four or five up to a dozen or more. No outstanding favorite has yet been established for the Futurity but if Greentree Stable sends along Big Stretch, the Breeders Futurity winner at Keeneland, it is likely he'll be the public choice. Among the juveniles which have displayed their wares at the meeting to date, Larry MacPhails' General Staff appears a stout candidate for Futurity honors. See you on the rail.

Red Knight Wins Horse Show Title

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Avon Shockey's Red Knight added another top tricolor to his record at the area's closing horse show at Fairfax, Va., yesterday.

The Madison Square Garden entry, showing under the handling of Gardner Hallman, scored 13 points for the open jumped championship at the Animal Welfare League of Arlington, Va., show.

The Alex Calvert handled gelding, Your Beau, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Shimkel accounted for the championship award in the hunter division after successful performances under Joe Green and Winnie Brown's saddle work.

Circus Prince now under the colors of Harry D. Ryan of Uniontown, Pa., won the reserve open jumper tricolor. Green, one of the top riders in the country will long be remembered for his making and showing of Wm. E. Schlussmeyer's Circus Rose, who was sold to August A. Busch, jr., for a reported $20,000 at this year's national show at Madison Square Garden.

Waverly Farm's Sir Sarazen; Dr. John R. Keeler's Wood Secret and Dr. A. C. Randolph's veteran Delaware Steeplechase winner. Pamuck were impressive blue ribbon winners.

Dr. John R. Keeler's Wood Secret performed well for her Silver Spring Veterinarian-owner by winning the knockdown-and-out event and placing fourth in the warm-up, the largest class of the day.

Golf Roundup

It's Pound for Stroke In Turkey Tourney

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

It's a question of who gets the big ones and who gets little ones from here on in in Rock Creek public golf course's turkey tournament.

Quarterfinalists in the month-long week-end tourney are assured of turkeys. So from now on, the linksmen will be shooting only to determine the size of bird they'll get.

Golfers eliminated in the quarter-finals will get one of those new "apartment-sized" 6-pound turkeys recently developed by the Department of Agriculture. Winner of the meet will get a whopping 20-pounder like grandpa used to grow down on the farm.

In other words, a stroke off the golf score may add a pound to the turkey!

In yesterday's quarter-final play, Del Todd beat Ed Frost, 2 up, Paul Catloth defeated Bob Alquist 1 up, Jim Reese won over J. W. White 3 up, and J. C. Bibb defeated A. Atwood, 4 and 3.

CONGRESSIONAL: The nomination for the unluckiest golfer in town belongs to W. T. Pierson of this club. Pierson ended in a four-way tie for first in yesterday's turkey tournament with G. F. Cramer, L. A. Jennings, and E. S. Draper. Only three turkeys were offered as prizes and Pierson lost in a match to see who would leave without a turkey.

ANACOSTIA: District Public Links Champion Freddie Lukat won the Garfield Gamble Trophy, defeating Red Tanner, 4 and 3.

In the semifinals of the club championship tournament, Ed Lightbrown beat Len Bridgitt, 2 up, and Courtney Litz upset Bill Swan, 1 up in 19 holes.

EAST POTOMAC: Frank Battista, 78-6—72; Julian Williams, 77-0—77, and Milt Yogan, 74-0—74, lead in the 18-hole medal handicap turkey tournament. Play will continue through next weekend. Entry fee is $1. The meet is still open to all publinx golfers.

WASHINGTON: Jack Smith and M. S. Horne tied for first in the turkey tournament with net 68s. Jim Murphy, 77-7—70, and Maj. Owen Hines, 80-9—71, also won turkeys.

In the mixed Scotch foursome, Mrs. Don Ball and Bob Hutchinson, 93-23—70, won first low net. Mrs. R. W. Hart and Jack Smith, 94-20—74 were second. Mrs. Weldon Price and George Price were third with a net 75.

ARGYLE: Mrs. Gus Sasscer and Frank Albosta won the mixed Scotch foursome with 79-9—70. Mrs. Dick Mothershead and Arnold Prada were second with a net 72, and Helen Hanson and Hal DeVolt were third with a net 73. Betty Garber and Dick Mothershead took low gross with 77.

BETHESDA: Results in the turkey tournament:

FIRST FLIGHT
Jack Ferguson beat George Winkler, 3 and 2.

SECOND FLIGHT
Neal McKinney beat Fred Kent, 2 and 1.

THIRD FLIGHT
Tom Baldwin beat Ken Kuster, one up.

FOURTH FLIGHT
Dr. Alex Freece beat Dick Pearce, 1 up.

San Francisco Beats Santa Clara

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12 (AP). Swift-footed Ollie Matson raced to two touchdowns to lead the University of San Francisco Dons to a 27-to-6 victory over the University of Santa Clara today.

A crowd of 13,567 saw the Dons score their first win over Santa Clara since 1937.

Matson, 203-pound, 6-foot 2-inch Negro fullback, scored both of the opening quarter touchdowns on 5 and 11 yards, respectively. His gains all were factors in the 44 and 40-yard marches that lead to the other touchdowns.

Scoring summary:

Santa Clara	0	6	0	0	—6
USF	13	0	7	7	—27

Santa Clara Scoring—Touchdown: Wiborn.

USF Scoring—Touchdowns: Matson 2, Scudero, Barni. Point after touchdown: Brown, 3 (placekicks).

"strong enough to tow a glider"

During the war only nylon proved to have the necessary stamina to withstand the terrific impact required to pick up and tow gliders. For years nylon has proved its outstanding strength and elasticity for air-mail operations. It's the principal rope used to pick up stationary mail bags on the fly. Nylon's strength and light weight qualities are clearly demonstrated in activities of this kind.

There are other important advantages of nylon, too. It dries quickly. Never shrinks. Requires no special soap or ironing. The new spun nylons are exceptionally soft, very warm and long wearing.

When you come searching for hose, we think you should be reminded of nylon's advantages. It's still so new that it cannot be relegated to the wool and cotton class. When we advertise or display nylon hose by famous Holeproof . . . when you come to either Men's Store, downtown or at our new Bethesda-Chevy Chase Suburban Store . . . we can give you the facts on nylon.

Gray Urges Continued, Coordinated Aid To Europe

Private investment should play its part in this, but the central tool must be "heavy reliance on public lending" from the U. S. A total of 600 to 800 million dollars a year is required, about half of which should come from the World Bank, and most of the rest from the Export-Import Bank.

In addition, outright grants of about 500 million dollars a year "for several years" should be made for technical assistance and development.

The overriding goal in the underdeveloped areas program should be the increase in agricultural production and productivity.

3. "Methods for international collaboration" in the procurement of raw materials by the United States and its allies should be established "promptly."

Although the report ducked the actual words, it seemed to be calling for a world allocations mechanism, to prevent prices of strategic raw materials from being bid up under the pressure of defense needs, and to make sure that those materials are "guided" to the right recipients "in the manner best calculated to contribute to the common defense."

Free International Trade

4. A series of steps should be taken to help and hasten free international trade. Some of these include continued support of international agreements to remove discriminatory trade and exchange practices; U. S. membership in the International Trade Organization; and U. S. financial help to Great Britain, in the form of a "stabilization credit" to permit that nation to restore the convertibility of sterling, once it has achieved the other requirements for convertibility.

On its part, the United States should continue to work for lower tariffs through the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act; renew that law for a four-year period; adopt, as an emergency "experiment," a law permitting unilateral tariff cuts by the President; simplify customs procedures, and end the "Buy American" law for Government procurement.

America should also modify the farm price support system, eliminate import embargoes, and stop encouraging increases in domestic farm production of crops that have to be protected by quotas, tariffs and subsidies.

No Shipping Preferences

Finally, it should negotiate with other countries to get rid of shipping cargo preferences—such as the requirement that 50 percent of Marshall Plan goods must be carried in American vessels—and use subsidies only to the amount necessary to maintain those shipping facilities needed for national security.

5. There must be better organization of foreign economic programs in the executive branch. To this end, foreign aid programs, except the provision of military equipment abroad, should be conducted by one agency.

It would administer all grant and technical assistance programs, and presumably have a coordinating role in the field of American lending abroad.

The report was vastly less outspoken in its criticism of economic and social practices in some of the European, Middle East and Asiatic countries. Nevertheless, it was still fairly blunt in denouncing cartellism in Europe and weak administration, indifference to mass welfare, fear of change and hostility to American motives in many governments elsewhere.

Repeatedly, the document called on Americans to look at their foreign aid expenditures in a new way. The important question to ask, it implied, is not whether the dollars we give aid in narrow fields like balancing payments, but whether they advance our total, global aim of security.

Mere dollars alone, the report hastened to point out, will not do the trick. But where they are keyed in with a comprehensive program of military, social and informational activity, they are the "essential supplements."

"In actual experience," the report said, "where our economic and political policies have been effective, as in Western Europe, we have gained ground. Where they have been ineffective, as in parts of Asia, we have lost ground. It is in the economic fields that the major progress has been made or defeats suffered.

"Military strength, while necessary, is not enough . . . We will make a disastrous mistake if we neglect those elements of a positive economic and political program without which, in the years to come, military strength might become ineffective."

The statement of the problems in America's foreign policy to which the report addressed itself indicated how much extended it had become since the study was first conceived. At that time, it was to examine mainly the problem of balance of payments after the end of the Marshall Plan.

Economic Problems

Major economic problems Gray itemized were:

1. In western Europe, the necessary rate of rearmament exceeds the ability of the nations there to attain by their own efforts and at the same time maintain their exports in order to support themselves.

2. The production of raw materials throughout the world must be increased. New capital is needed for that. Furthermore, there are "serious dangers" regarding their price and distribution.

3. "The economic stagnation, political unrest, and extreme poverty of the most underdeveloped countries represent a growing threat to the rest of the free world."

4. Despite temporary measures needed to influence price and distribution of strategic raw materials, it is still important to develop free, unrestricted international trade.

5. Major domestic adjustments, particularly to encourage a greater flow of imports into the United States, are necessary.

6. "There is cause for concern regarding the morale and outlook of peoples in many parts of Western Europe and undeveloped areas."

In its detailed analysis of the problem of Western Europe, the report pointed out that the effect of the defense program was to make its terms of trade deteriorate. That is, the European nations would have to pay more for their imports of materials, because of price rises, than they could make up by higher prices for their exports.

As a consequence of this and of diversions of their own production to military uses, there will be for the Europeans "a significant lowering . . . in the proportions of total output which now can be devoted to consumption."

By reduced consumption and reduced investment, the Western European nations will bear some of the burden of rearmament, the report said. But it urged repeatedly that not too much of the burden be born by reducing European exports.

That would just make the problem greater in the long run, continue the burden on the United States a longer time, and actually work against what we are trying to create, i.e., the ultimate economic stability and self-support of Western Europe, the report argued.

The amount of aid which the United States should continue to give Europe cannot be estimated now, the report said. But, it insisted, because of the new defense demands, "June 30, 1952, is thus no longer the target date" on which Europe can be independent of further American financial help.

The effect of the expanded defense program will greatly help the economic conditions of some of the countries in the backward areas, according to the report. These are the ones with great amounts of raw materials to export —Malaya, Indonesia and some others.

But even for them, and for all the rest, the standard of living is so low, poverty so grinding and unrest so great that they are "fertile ground for the growth of Communist movements."

They must be aided by developmental programs, the report concludes.

"The pressing need of most underdeveloped regions," it adds, "is for agricultural reforms which would combine measures to raise the agricultural productivity with steps to ameliorate the tenure, credit and tax burdens that bear most heavily on the agricultural population."

India, the study hinted, will be an exception to this program. It probably needs substantial outright grants, for it has little of raw materials to export for the military program of the Western world.

Those grants that are extended — presumably about half a billion dollars a year, according to the report's recommendations — must be tied in closely with technical assistance. And technical assistance itself must be tied in closely with financial projects for development.

In and between the lines of the document there was sharp criticism of the present Point Four technical aid program. It will get nowhere, the report intimated, if it operates on its own hook, uncoordinated with projects that have financial backing.

It strongly urged that developmental projects be carried out under international auspices, by reason of a characteristic misunderstanding and suspicion of American objectives in backward lands.

The study, entitled "Report to the President on Foreign Economic Policies," is on sale for 40 cents at the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office.

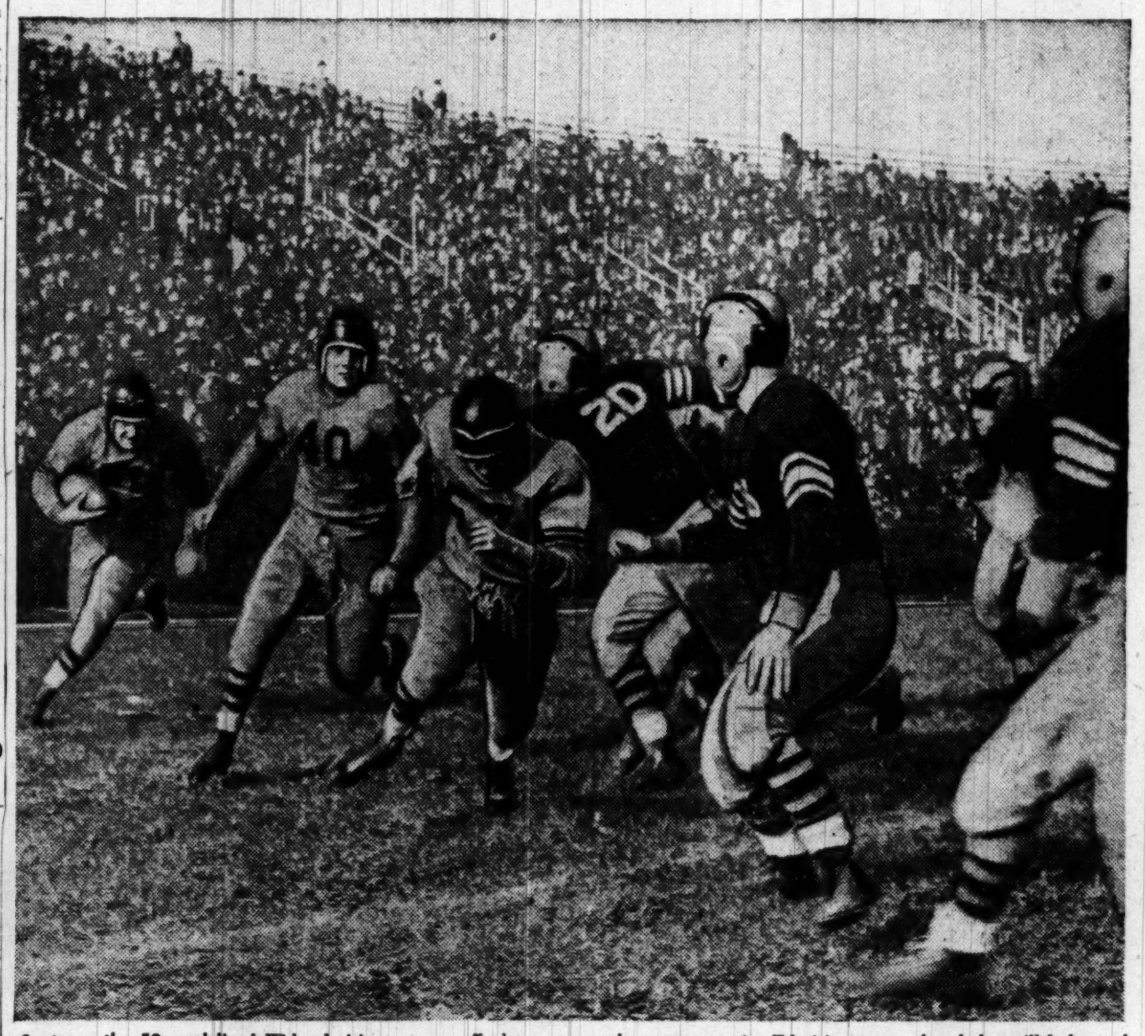
OWN A Motorola AND YOU KNOW YOU OWN THE BEST

HOW YOUR TV SET PAYS FOR ITSELF!

Motorola, leader in television, lists a few of the entertainment luxuries TV brings to you!



Seats on the 50-yard line! With television you can afford to see sports events thousands of miles away from home—from the World Series to championship boxing, from big-stake horse races to big-money golf. You know that at today's prices, even a home-town "night out" can be pretty expensive. Television owners, though they still find a good motion picture or local sports event a worthwhile expense, spend many a thrifty evening at home enjoying an endless variety of the world's finest entertainment. That's how a television set quickly pays for itself.

A night at the Opera! Good tickets for opening night at the famous Metropolitan Opera cost plenty, not to mention the cost of getting there from your home. But TV takes you to opening night of the opera just as it brings you, night after night, Broadway-type shows featuring the top stars of Hollywood in programs which cost their public spirited sponsors a total of more than $100,000,000 a year.

Taking the kids to Washington! It could put a big dent in a $500 bill to give your children the patriotic inspiration of a trip. Yet TV takes your family to famed spots all over the world . . . for free!

A Plus for the ladies! To please feminine tastes, TV offers a wealth of special programs on home making, child rearing—plus fashion shows featuring latest styles from New York and Paris.

Motorola's leadership in cabinet design as well as performance is recognized with the 1950 Fashion Academy Gold Medal Award. Typical example of Motorola supremacy is this Combination Model 17F4. Clear, steady 16" picture, only 2 simple controls, Bilt-in-Antenna, FM/AM radio, "Multi-play" changer plays all record speeds; price only $549.95 plus picture tube warranty. View it at your dealer's along with other beautiful Motorola models from $209.95 to $725.00.

Arrange for a Motorola demonstration in your home. The sooner you do so, the quicker your Motorola will start to pay for itself.

Coldest Day In 7 Months Forecast for Capital Area

28 in City and 20 In Suburbs, With 48-Degree High This Afternoon

Washington early today was due to get its coldest weather in seven months—a bone-chilling 28 degrees in the city and 20 in the suburbs.

The Weather Bureau's forecasters added the warming note that, though early morning temperatures would probably be the lowest of the curent cold spell, the afternoon temperatures should hit 48 degrees, four degrees above yesterday's high. At 6:45 a. m. yesterday, the District experienced a low of 30 degrees.

But no quick warm-up is in store for Washington, the Weather Bureau warned.

It will be a slow and gradual process.

Bureau records show that the last time the temperature dropped below 30 here was last April 14, when the thermometer registered 24.

The rest of the Nation also was shivering in the cold wave from Canada.

It was freezing as far south as San Antonio, Tex., which had a 27-degree low. Austin, Tex., had 24 and Amarillo, Tex., a numbing 20.

One bright spot in the Nation's weather troubles was that an expected freeze in the orchard regions of Southern California apparently did not materialize.

Snow fell yesterday in the western Dakotas, in Wyoming, Idaho, and sections of Oregon, Minnesota and Montana.

The cold snap and freezing rains broke power lines in Alabama.

Pedestrian Dies After Being Struck By Truck

Former Washington Monument Guard Is Victim of Accident Here Saturday Night

DISTRICT TRAFFIC TOLL:
1950 deaths to date 59
1949 deaths to date 62
Total 1949 death toll 71

Joseph Doyle, 52, former guard at the Washington Monument, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital of injuries received Saturday night when he was struck by a truck at 15th st. and Rhode Island ave. nw.

Doyle was admitted to the hospital with a fractured skull, hip and legs. He died there at 8 a. m. Witnesses told police he was struck while crossing the street against a red light.

The driver of the truck, John S. Few, 38, of 1433 T st. nw., an employe of the Batt Bates Duplicating Co., 1407 K st. nw., was charged with unreasonable speed and was released under $500 bond. A technical charge of hold for the coroner was placed against him yesterday. He will appear at a coroner's inquest at a later date.

Leaves Two Sisters

Doyle, who lived at 1325 16th st. nw., is survived by two sisters, Miss Helen M. Doyle of 1669 Columbia rd. nw., and Mrs. P. M. Rice of Portland, Oreg.

Three youths were injured early yesterday when their car crashed into an electric light pole at Alabama ave. and Best st. se. after the driver lost control of it while trying to turn on the radio, police reported.

The driver, Alfred W. Wolf, 17, 1403 57th ave., Hillside, Md., was treated at Gallinger Hospital for face lacerations and released. One passenger in the car, Richard Hines, 14, of 6002 O st., Hillside, Md., was admitted to Gallinger Hospital in undetermined condition with scalp lacerations, possible head injuries and possible fractured ribs. A second passenger, Charles Hines, 16, of the O st. address, was released after treatment for cuts and bruises.

Two Others Injured

Two persons were injured in a two-car collision at Park pl. and Columbia rd. nw. about 2:30 a. m.

Admitted to Emergency Hospital in undetermined condition, with possible fractured ribs and face lacerations, was Katherine McIlvaine, 33, of 1334 Columbia rd. nw.

Police said she was a passenger in a car driven by Harry Sweitzer, 33, of 83 New York ave. nw., who was released from the hospital after treatment for cuts and bruises.

The driver of the other car, Thomas C. Avery, 34, of 1881 3d st. nw., was charged with failing to yield the right of way to another vehicle, police said.

Policemen Hurt

Two Metropolitan policemen attached to the Second Precinct station were injured yesterday afternoon in the collision of a patrol wagon and a streetcar.

The driver of the patrol wagon, Pvt. Louis B. Anderson, 33, of 1204 Neal st. ne., was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for lacerations to his hand and leg, and released. His partner, Pvt. Roger R. Core, 32, of 1626 Montello ave. ne., was released after treatment for a back injury.

Police said Anderson was turning left into Corcoran st. from 14th st. nw., when the streetcar, operated by Elmer D. Wheeler, 35, of 11802 Ivanhoe st., Silver Spring, Md., struck the rear of the patrol wagon.

'Multi-Test' Health Survey In Alexandria

Residents Offered Chance for 13 Tests Free During Week

A five-day "multitest" health survey will be inaugurated today by the Alexandria Health Department, coincident with the opening of the Alexandria Tuberculosis Association's annual free chest survey.

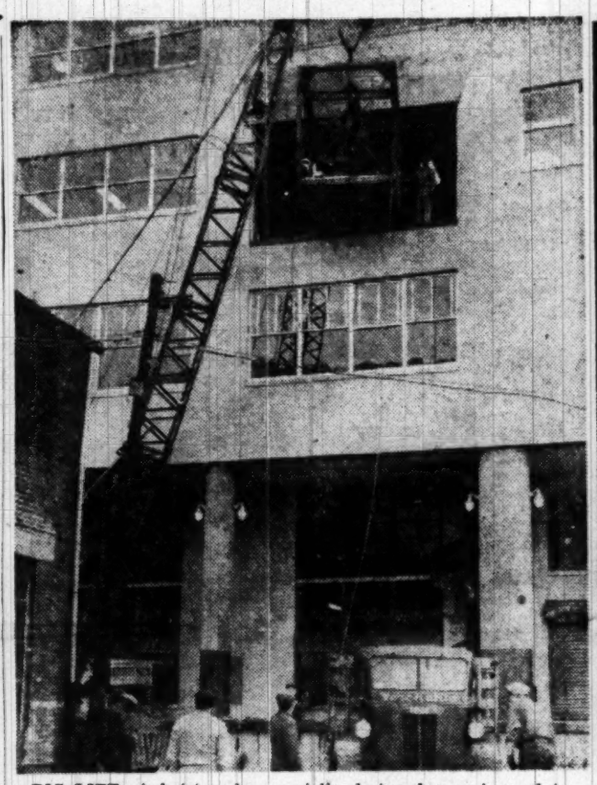
The program, continuing daily through Friday from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., will offer Alexandrians an opportunity to undergo 13 separate tests at no cost. It has been arranged in cooperation with State and Federal health services, with the indorsement of a variety of local health organizations.

Besides the chest X-rays, applicants will be tested for height, weight, hearing, sight, urinalysis, electro-cardiogram and will be given blood analyses covering five different phases of blood testing.

Dr. T. F. McGough, city health officer, said the department is prepared to handle about 400 applicants a day. The department staff will be supplemented by workers from the State Health Department and the United States Public Health Service and volunteers from the tuberculosis association, the Red Cross and other local agencies.

Any "unusual" findings resulting from the survey will be referred to the private physicians of applicants, Dr. McGough said. "We are not diagnosticians and will not attempt to evaluate the findings," he said, "but merely are attempting to assist physicians in locating any unusual deficiencies in the patients they may have to treat later."

The tests will be conducted at the department's headquarters, 517 N. St. Asaph st.



BIG LIFT—A hoist and a specially designed cage is used to hoist the heavy composing-room equipment into the new building. This equipment was moved in two stages so there would be a minimum of difficulty in setting type and making up the editions published while the move was under way

COLD COMPOSITOR—To get the linotypes and other large equipment out of the old building it was necessary to open up the rear wall on the second-floor level. With the composing room open to the weather, Stanley B. Foltz and other employes found it cold work getting out the editions

One Dies, 2d Burned in Fire At SE Shack

Man Mistakenly Identified as Victim Later Found Alive

An unidentified man was killed and a second seriously burned in a fire that destroyed a small shack in the woods near 18th and Gainesville sts. se. early yesterday.

The victim was at first erroneously identified as John Carl, a 50-year-old plasterer.

The second man, William P. Jones, 36, no fixed address, was admitted to Casualty Hospital in serious condition with first and second-degree burns to his body and arms. He was found unconscious about 50 feet from the blazing shack.

Three engine companies and a truck company responded to the alarm. The blaze burned the one-story frame and galvanized iron shack to the ground.

As firemen fought their way through, they found Jones unconscious and covered up to his shoulders with leaves. He rallied long enough to tell them his friend, Carl, was in the shack.

Firemen, searching the ashes after the flames had died down, found the charred body of a man.

They told police what Jones had told them and police in turn notified Carl's estranged wife, Mrs. Anna Carl, of 1626 V st. se., that Carl was dead.

A son, John Carl, jr., however, started an immediate search for his father. He found him alive several hours later but would not say where.

The father and son then notified police that Carl was alive, and later visited the District morgue but were unable to identify the victim.

Police said they have been unable to question Jones further about the identity of the dead man, or why he said it was Carl. Nor can Carl shed any light on why Jones gave firemen his name, since he was not around the shack early yesterday, they said.

Police said they have not determined who owns the shack or what started the fire.

Hospital Group To Open National Members Drive

A Nation-wide membership campaign for the National Hospital Foundation, Inc., is to be launched at the Uline Arena December 3 at 3 p. m., it was announced yesterday.

Henry A. Wallace, former Vice Ident, has been invited to keynote President, has been invited to keynote the campaign. Aim of the foundation, its officers say, is to provide equipment and endow modern hospitals in United States cities there are 10,000 or more Negro residents.

The foundation also is reported to be seeking a Federal grant of two billion dollars to aid in starting a 200-bed hospital and nurses' home in the northeast Washington area, foundation officials said. The project is estimated to cost four million dollars.

K. of C. Holds Military Mass For War Dead

A military mass for the dead of both World Wars and the Korea conflict in Korea was held yesterday in the University of Maryland stadium.

It was the ninth annual armistice Sunday observation of the Prince Georges Council, Knights of Columbus, and officials estimated it drew 800 persons.

The Very Rev. John S. Spence, director of education for the Washington archdiocese, gave the sermon, paying tribute to the men who sacrificed for God and country during the three wars.

A guard of honor consisted of fourth-degree members of the K. of C. and representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The Most Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, auxiliary bishop of Washington and rector of Catholic University, presided.

Dr. Kronstein to Give Talk on Church and Jews

"The Church and The Jews" will be the subject of a talk by Dr. Heinrich Kronstein, Georgetown University Law School professor, at the St. Peter Claver Center's open forum today at 8 p. m., at 1513 U st. nw.

The center's interracial drama group is beginning production on a new play and those interested in parts should attend Friday night meetings at 8 p. m.

The Rev. Paul H. Furfey, of Catholic University, will give the next Day of Recollection at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Missions, North Arlington, Sunday, November 26.

Talk on 'Thanksgiving'

The Hyattsville Lions Club will hear a talk on "Thanksgiving," by the Rev. Raymond P. Cahill, a club member, at its meeting November 14 at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club at 7 p. m.

$3000 Pledged In Drive to Save Church

A $30,000 campaign opened at the church, 21st and North Paft sts., with an estimated 400 persons attending.

Among the speakers were W. P. Ames, Arlington lumber dealer, and Col. Norman B. Ames, dean of the school of electrical engineering at George Washington University.

The Ames brothers bought the church and its parsonage last month after the property had been foreclosed because of delinquent mortgage payments.

A sponsoring committee of 20 prominent Arlington leaders has joined with the Ames brothers in raising money so the church can be returned to its congregation. The drive is expected to end by the first of the year.

The Rev. Glendale Burton, president of the Arlington Ministerial League, was in charge of yesterday's program.

The church's financial difficulties followed the collapse of a home-building project of its pastor, profits of which were to go toward paying off the mortgage on the new church. The plan of the minister, the Rev. Floyd N. Bradley, ended in bankruptcy last summer.

House Numbering To Be Discussed At Takoma Park

A public hearing on renaming streets and proposed extension of the "grid system" of house renumbering will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Takoma Junior High School, Piney Branch rd., near Philadelphia ave.

The proposed plan would incorporate Takoma Park in an over-all renumbering system of the Washington metropolitan area. Officials of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission will speak at the hearing.

The system is designed to make all Montgomery County numbering tie in consecutively with addresses existing in the District of Columbia and Prince Georges County, according to planning officials.

operation at 3 p. m. yesterday. The old board will serve as an "interim" auxiliary to handle calls to departments in the old building.

The number remains the same—NAtional 4200—for all departments in either building.

Representing the paper at the ceremony were Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Charles C. Boysen, secretary of the paper; John W. Sweeterman, business manager, and R. Brandon Marsh, assistant to the business manager.

Representing the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. were J. R. B. Crigler, vice president and general manager; John M. Howard, general commercial manager; John T. Kent, district commercial manager; W. J. McManus, a vice president; L. P. Harsch, service manager, and J. Donald Moore, a service engineer.

Three telephone operators were on hand at the new building—Mrs. Mary A. Parker, chief operator; Mrs. Harriet A. McGhee and Mrs. Marie F. Green.

A few minutes after 3 p. m., Mrs. Parker connected Meyer with President and Publisher Philip L. Graham.

"Mr. Graham," said Mrs. Parker proudly, "this is the new Washington Post switchboard. Here is Mr. Meyer."

Meyer talked into a telephone operator's headset.

"I am making the first call over the new switchboard," he said.

". . . This historic event will be followed, I hope, by many happy and successful years . . ."

Print of Nudes 'Borrowed,' Then Returned

A Picasso print of three nudes disappeared Saturday from the second floor ballroom of the United Nations Club, 1701 19th st. nw.

Police were called in immediately to investigate the mysterious theft.

Yesterday the case was marked "closed," when an embarrassed and very chagrined gentleman called the Club and explained he had merely "borrowed" the picture while attending a wedding party at the Club Saturday afternoon.

The guest couldn't shed much light on why or how he had taken the print. All he knew, he explained, was that he found it in his home when he woke up yesterday morning. He admitted he had enjoyed a little too much liquid refreshment at the party. No charges were placed against him.

Miss Agnes DeLano of 4849 Sedgewick st. nw., said the print, valued at $75, was loaned to the club by the B'Nai Gallery in New York City for a month-long art exhibit which closed Saturday night.

Nun Saves Girl, 10, From Man's Attack

The sharp hand-clapping of a nun in a window of the Nativity Convent at Quackenbos st. and Georgia ave. nw., last night saved a 10-yer-old girl from her attacker, who fled in fright.

Police said the girl, a fourth grader at the Nativity School, was walking home from the movies at about 8 p. m., when she was dragged from Georgia ave., through the ruins of the old Brightwood School and into the bushes in front of the convent.

One of the sisters, who was not identified, told police she saw the man beating the screaming child and threatening to kill her if she didn't quiet down.

The attacker fled as she clapped her hands through the convent window at him, the nun reported. The child told her parents her attacker had been trying to remove her clothes.

Police broadcast a lookout for a Negro who may have a bite on his hands. The child was unable to describe him further. She was treated for bruises by a private physician and taken to her home.

Atlas Club Head Claims ABC in Error

Officials of the Atlas Club yesterday declared the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has erroneously conclued that the club purchased liquor for sale to its patrons.

The conclusion by board members was released in a finding of fact Saturday when they denied the Atlas Club a Class C liquor license to operate as a private organization at 1349 E st. nw.

The board said: "An examination of check stubs showed that on numerous occasions the club made large purchases of alcoholic beverages and without an explanation of such purchases, it is reasonable to conclude these beverages were sold to the patrons, in violation of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act."

Paul Pfeifle, president of the club since last August, said yesterday that he, too examined the check stubs, which were dated several years ago. He said he has learned that the checks were made out to several liquor stores, but they were not for the purchase of liquor.

Pfeifle said the checks were for the purchase of soda water, ginger ale and cigarettes. The club bought them from nearby liquor stores, because it had inadequate storage facilities and the stores provided rapid service, he explained.

He also denied the ABC Board's charge that the club has no occupancy permit for the premises. Pfeifle said the club has a permit, which was issued November 15, 1943.

The Mt. Rainier and Prince Georges Recreation Councils will sponsor an adult recreation program at the Mt. Rainier High Thursday nights starting November 30.

Fall Fatal To Woman During Party

Mrs. Ida Welland, 61, of 1656 Trinidad ave. ne., was fatally injured early yesterday when she fell down a flight of steps while attending a birthday party.

The party, given by fellow workers in the Federal Power Commission for Mrs. Raymond Kichline at her home at 2613 Franklin st. ne., had almost ended when Mrs. Welland slipped and fell as she was going up the steps from the basement to the kitchen.

She was taken to Gallinger Hospital, where she was pronounced dead on arrival about 12:30 a. m. Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg said she died of a fractured skull. He said he would issue a certificate of accidental death.

Mrs. Welland was employed as a statistical clerk by FPC.

She is survived by two sons, William F. Welland, with whom she made her home, and George A. Welland, of 606 Atlantic st. se.; two sisters, Mrs. Edgar Benson and Mrs. Jane Swanson, and a brother, Stephen Williams, all of Baltimore.

Funeral services will be Wednesday at 10 a. m. at Chambers Southeast funeral home, 517 11th st. se. Burial will be in Baltimore.

Did 'Madeleine' Slip Emile the Arsenic?

By Richard L. Coe

THE UNSOLVED MYSTERY of Madeleine Smith is a famous criminal record, but the attempt to tell about it in "Madeleine," at the Trans-Lux, comes off as a disappointment.

The trial of Madeleine Smith took place in Glasgow in 1857. She was accused of having murdered Emile L'Angelier, her lover, by slipping him some arsenic. The verdict of the jury was "Not Proven," a technicality peculiar to Scottish law. What happened to Miss Smith after she was let free—neither condemned nor acquitted—is uncertain, though it's thought she came to the United States.

At all events, her life both before and after the trial was passed in obscurity. The picture, with Ann Todd in the title role, presents the events leading up to the crime, but unfortunately it has been poorly cut and only by investigation do I discover that originally the film showed us how the daughter of a quiet, respectable and wealthy man happened to become acquainted with a poor clerk.

In the Trans-Lux print we find her meeting her young Frenchman in secret. She seems to be leading him on in his desire to marry her, promising to introduce him to her respectable family, though in the class-conscious days of the Victorians that posed more of a problem than such would now.

A thoroughly suitable friend of her father proposes and she's half honest with him. The completely satisfactory aspect of the proposed marriage delights her, however, after her young clerk refuses to take her away from her father by marrying her. The suspicion is planted most carefully that the clerk wants her money and position.

Finally he's found dead of arsenic poisoning, either a suicide or a murderer's victim. Madeleine's use of the poison as a cosmetic is used to point suspicion at her; other details build the affair into a notorious trial. Then comes the verdict of "Not proven." We leave Madeleine's inscrutable face on the screen. Was she guilty or wasn't she?

As I've said, the cutting is surprisingly poor from such a director as Lean, whose credits include "Great Expectations," "Brief Encounter" and "In Which We Serve." It is clear, however, that he spent much of his footage on giving us background details, which do slowly add up to the climax of mystery he is seeking. But it is ponderous and, I fear, dull.

Miss Todd is fine as the mysterious lady; her face, so reminiscent of Garbo's, suggests, much of the time, that uncertainty in the viewer that is the essence of the story. But too much of what's dull has been included and too much of what contributes to the lasting mystery omitted.

DON O'REILLEY, who publishes a magazine here about auto racing, "Speed Age," writes enthusiastically about the Capitol's "To Please a Lady," wherein Clark Gable burns up the tracks . . . In his September issue Walt Woestman tells how he doubled for Will Geer in the picture and Bud Rose, who looks just like him, is pictured as Gable in car 17 . . . In the January issue, O'Reilly plans to have more about this picture that will mean so much to his readers . . . "More important," Mark Rene will point out, "racing men have made the movie. Has the perfect racing picture been made, at last?" . . . Though some of what he had to say about the picture wasn't so hot, Reviewer Orval Hopkins agreed with the experts about those track sequences.

WITH "Te Taming of the Shrew," Arena Stage tonight gets closest yet to the type of staging most directly related to its theater-in-the-round approach . . . For the emphasis on costumes and props and the lack of picture-frame settings is also the way Globe Theater audiences saw this comedy . . . It's also the play which gave the Spewacks and Cole Porter the idea for their Watergate smash of last summer and almost tempted Director Edward Mangum to bill his new show: "The original version of 'Kiss Me, Kate'." . . . Ann Chodoff, Pernell Roberts, Barbara Cole, Harry Scully, Warner Schreiner, Dick O'Neill and Lester Rawlins top the cast.

MRS. TRUMAN heads the list of sponsors for the "Trio" Wednesday night gala at the Playhouse, aiding the American Theater Wing's Washington Hospital Committee drive for funds . . . On Wednesday night the 304th Army Band from Walter Reed will play and Reviewer Jay Carmody will be master of ceremonies.

"MADELEINE," J. Arthur Rank Organization presents the story of the Madeleine Smith trial by Cinequild Productions. Produced by Stanley Haynes and directed by David Lean, who lead the collaboration on the screen play. At the Trans-Lux.

Nurses Slate 47th Annual Meeting Here

The forty-seventh annual meeting of the Graduate Nurses Association and the League of Nursing Education of the District of Columbia will be held tomorrow and Wednesday.

The business meeting of the league will be held on Tuesday at Emergency Hospital Nurses' Home at 4 p. m. The Graduate Nurses Association business meeting will be held at the same place at 8 p. m. Most of the business meeting of the Graduate Nurses Association will be given over to reports of committee activities during the year. The most important report will be that of the Committee on Resources to meet Civilian and Military Needs, which has been functioning as a part of the American Nurses Association plan to cooperate with the armed services in procuring quotas and with civilian agencies in maintaining adequate nursing service.

The committee will maintain an up-to-date roster of active and inactive nurses. Nursing will then know the status and availability of professional nurses and will cooperate with the proper authorities in providing or obtaining nurses to serve where the need is greatest.

Miss Petersen, committee chairman, reports that, to date, over 7000 survey cards have been mailed to nurses registered in this area. These cards will be made available to Civil Defense authorities. In addition, subcommittees have been appointed to meet with employers of agencies to obtain an accurate survey of all nurses employed—their positions, essentiality, etc.

The program meeting will be held on Wednesday from 3-5 p. m. and 8-10 p. m. at Gaston Hall, Georgetown University. Arrangements have been made for dinner at Maguire Hall between meetings.

University Club Will Honor U. S. Educator

Dr. and Mrs. Richard S. Kennan will be honor guests of the Education Committee of the University Women's Club at tea today, to be held in the club rooms, 1515 New Hampshire ave. at 4 p. m. Dr. Kennan, who is chairman of the National Education Association's Commission for the Defense of Democracy, will speak on the work of his commission.

The Commission was organized in 1941 and its work is directed primarily toward encouraging better teaching conditions, better education, and defending unjustly treated teachers and school systems.

At 7:30 p. m. today Burke Wilkinson, author of "Run, Mongoose," which was recently published, will tell about writing this book of high adventure A dinner will be held at 6:30 p. m. immediately preceding the talk. The program was arranged by the Writers Group, Miss Emily Clark, leader.

A gala benefit dinner party will be held at the club at 6:15 p. m. on Wednesday. This is to be a Hat Party. Each person is asked to box a hat attractively and bring it to the party where she will buy unseen another hat for a dollar, don it immediately and step into dinner with friends similarly adorned.

Georgetown Convent Alumnae Elect Mrs. John Caspar

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Georgetown Visitation Convent Alumnae Association, Mrs. John R. Caspar of Hancock, Md., was elected to fill out the term of Mrs. Frank A. Allen, jr. Mrs. Allen left in June to join General Allen in Tokyo.

Mrs. Warren Hoover and Mrs. John J. Hagerty were elected to the committee and Miss Jeanne O'Hearn was elected treasurer.

The association has been actively engaged for the past three years in a building fund campaign for a new classroom building. Miss Christabel Hill, chairman of the building committee, has announced that there is now over $100,000 in the fund.

D. C. Scots Plan First Tartan Ball

The Saint Andrews (Scottish) Society of Washington will give a Tartan Ball in the Main Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on November 30 in celebration of Saint Andrew's Day.

This will be the first such event held by the Washington society and the first Tartan Ball ever to be held in this area. The group plans to sponsor such an event on each November 30 in honor of Andrew, patron saint of Scotland.

Dr. Hoey to Speak

Dr. Jane M. Hoey, director of the Bureau of Public Assistance of the Social Security Administration, will be guest speaker at a breakfast following the tenth annual corporate mass and communion of the Alumnae Association of the College of Mount St. Vincent-on-Hudson, New York, today at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York.

WHY THOUSANDS of DOCTORS prescribe pleasant tasting
PERTUSSIN FOR BAD COUGHS
(CAUSED BY COLDS)
For years — thousands of Doctors prescribed PERTUSSIN to promptly relieve bad coughs caused by colds. This is the same effective PERTUSSIN you can get today at any drugstore.
PERTUSSIN is scientifically prepared to act AT ONCE. It gently stimulates tiny glands in throat and windpipe to pour out their natural secretions. Thick phlegm is loosened and more easily 'raised'. Your throat is soothed and coughing relieved. Pleasant tasting.
PERTUSSIN is safe and mighty effective for both old and young—even small children. Inexpensive.

'Hostess With the Mostest' Becomes a Guest With the Best

By Elizabeth Maguire

MARVIN BRAVERMAN, plain citizen, gave a party yesterday, and the great of the land attended. Honor guest was our Minister of Luxembourg, Mrs. Perle Mesta, whose fame as a party giver adds glamor to gatherings.

The White House circle was well represented, as Host Braverman is a frequent escort of Miss Margaret Truman, and therefore well acquainted with the First Family and their friends.

Mrs. Truman, escorted by her brother, Frederick Wallace of Denver, Colo., arrived at the height of the festivity. The First Lady wore a green wool suit and little brown hat. She seemed to enjoy herself, as she remained chatting with friends for a good long while.

Guests were received by Mr. Braverman and the Minister in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock, and judging by the crowds that arrived early and stayed late, the occasion was a real success.

Mrs. Earle Stewart of New York, a friend of Mrs. Truman, was also in the gathering. Other White House representatives included the Assistant to the President and Mrs. John Steelman and the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Charles Ross. Associate Justice and Mrs. Tom Clark were there, as well as Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan, and the Chief of Staff of the Air Force, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, and Mrs. Vandenberg.

EVERY INCH OF FLOOR SPACE in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower (part of the ballroom as well) was taken up with glamour. Cameras clicked right up to the finish. Faye Emerson, her blonde hair in a low chignon, and a red flower pinned on her black suit, arrived with her brand new fiance, "Skitch" Henderson.

The room was full of beautiful women, beautifully dressed, and the guest of honor, Mme. Mesta, wore a costume of greatest elegance and chic. "It's Molyneux," she said, "most of my frocks are Molyneux." Her mink stole was made especially for her by Guenther of New York.

Mme. Mesta's gown was black, with circular neckline and skirt, sprinkled with black sequins. Her clips, bracelets and earrings were diamonds.

AMONG THE FIRST to arrive were the Ambassador of Peru and Senora de Berckemeyer; Mrs. John Farr Simmons, wife of the Chief of Protocol; Mrs. Emlen Davies and her daughter Mrs. Rahel Fitch, and Mrs. Hope Rydings Miller.

Opera Singer Rosa Ponselle, a Baltimore 'neighbor', arrived escorted by Berend H. Dryver, while the Dean of the Corps and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne chaperoned their post-deb daughter Marjorie. Senator Theodore Green represented Capitol Hill among early arrivals, and Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, the service set. Daniel Bell, author of the Bell report on the Philippines, and Mrs. Bell were prompt, as were Bowdoin Craighill, Perry Wheeler and Joseph Scott.

OTHER GUESTS INCLUDED Joseph Ryle of Paris and New York, Maj. Alexander Seversky, noted author; Senator and Mrs. Brian McMahon; Mrs. Fay Lewisohn; Craig Kelly, Broadway producer; Gen. and Mrs. Omar Bradley, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, and former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Davies.

Among chiefs of mission attending the function were the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Erkin, the Charge d'Affaires of Spain and Senora Propper de Callejon, and the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann. Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, was also present.

Senator and Mrs. Clinton Anderson came with the daughter, Miss Nancy Anderson, who fell into conversation with Miss Sophie Mayer, Mme. Bonnet's niece, Miss Jane Lingo and James Snitzler. A pretty senorita, new in town, was Elena Machado, daughter of the new Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Machado.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert brought with them as their guest to the party, C. J. Manussis, Coca-Cola king of Kenya. The latter had arrived by air from Africa the day before on his first visit to America. "And I've already met Mrs. Truman," he said, somewhat bewildered.

FROM NOW until Minister Mesta returns to Luxembourg at the end of November, there is a string of parties for her. Yesterday's schedule was a typical one, with party following party. After Mr. Braverman's do, a dinner was given by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, and Mrs. Johnston, who entertained in their home, later taking their guests to a preview of "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the association's Academia. The United Artists picture stars Jose Ferrer.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. Mesta was booked for still another party. A luncheon planned by Comdr. and Mrs. B. Harrison Lingo, was postponed till Mrs. Mesta's next visit to Washington.

All this leads us to believe, it's not next week or next month you make a date with Mrs Mesta, it's next year!

A GALA PREMIERE will take place at the Playhouse Theater on Tuesday evening, in tribute to the Washington hospital committee of the American Theater Wing. The occasion is the presentation of W. Somerset Maugham's "Trio," by the Playhouse and Paramount Pictures Corp. to an invited audience. The show will spotlight the rehabilitation work which the Washington hospital committee of the American Theater Wing does in the wards of our military, naval, and veterans' hospitals.

The list of sponsors is headed by Mrs. Truman, and includes Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the United States Minister of Luxembourg Mrs. Perle Mesta, the Secretary of Defense and Mrs. George C. Marshall.

The list of acceptances include the Italian Ambassador and Mme. Tarchiani, the Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Thomen, the Ambassador of Ceylon and Mme. Corea, the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina, the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Valle, the Ambassador of Colombia and Senora de Zuleta-Angel, the Costa Rican Ambasador and Senora de Oreamuno, the Minister of Brazil and Mme. Navarro, the Minister of Spain and Senora de Callejon, Admiral and Mrs. Arthur J. Hepburn and Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman.

The Toybox

Santa Says 'Hello' to Constituents

By Alleis C. Wilson

SANTA CLAUS is once again well-established in Washington to welcome believers—large and small—to all the wonders of toylands. And now that he has arrived, the stores have taken on a festive air.

At Kann's, the jolly gentleman is seated in a bright red sleigh with gilt runners drawn by two white reindeer. St. Nick is waiting on the porch of his house to greet visitors to Lansburgh's toy department.

Mirrors are strategically placed around Santa at the Hecht Co. so that parents can watch the child's reaction to sitting on Santa's lap. Here, also, photographs can be taken to record permanently the child's thrill at meeting Santa at close quarters. ($1.) Toys are at hand to help the child overcome shyness during the conversation.

SANTA WILL TALK to his friends in the comfort of a cozy cottage at Woodward & Lothrop. The house is decorated with toys and tinsel and gay gift packages.

And Santa's pack will include a large assortment of beautiful and practical toys this year. A pyramid of pliable plastic nesting blocks would be just the thing for a member of the playpen set. Most nests of blocks in the past have been either cardboard or wood. This nest combines the best features of both—it is light weight and durable. (The Hecht Co.—$1.25.)

Another type of blocks for very young children is a set of six wooden musical cubes. These are large, hollow ones with tinkling bells inside. (Play Center, Inc.—$2.50.)

A SMALL CANVAS folding stroller would please any doll's mother who does much shopping. This one has a canvas carrying pouch for groceries or small parcels. (Lansburgh's—$4.95.)

It seems that all the work-saving machines for homes are quickly copied in toys for play work. One of the latest is the automatic dishwasher. A small model is available with a removable tray which holds tiny plastic dishes. It will actually use water to wash the dishes and can be spun manually to dry them. (Kann's—$1.49).

A TODDLER, TOO young to safely play with a metal wagon, would love to haul toys around in a small wooden cart. It has a pull cord instead of a metal handle. (Play Center, Inc.—$3).

All the parts for an automobile assembly line come in a box that should prove a challenge to young mechanics. This car kit includes wheels, fenders, axles, frame, wind-up motor and bumpers in plastic and metal. With these parts, the boys can put together a racer, convertible, sedan, or roadster. The cars are 11 inches long and only one can be built at a time. (F. A. O. Schwarz—$5.)

Hours of entertainment lie in a box of jumbo size stencils. There is a real thrill of accomplishment for a preschooler to trace an animal outline on plain paper, color it and cut it out, and perhaps even paste it on a contrasting paper. This set contains four simple stencils and a box of large crayons. (The Hecht Co.—59c.)

CHILDREN, ESPECIALLY girls beginning to take an interest in jewelry, enjoy stringing beads. Sets of beads and shells to string into necklaces and bracelets come in a wide price range. A box of very tiny beads with larger decorative buttons is $1.60. (Woodward & Lothrop.) The 5 and 10 cent stores have inexpensive sets and plastic bags of beads to string. (G. C. Murphy—29c.) A bag of small sea shells is 59c.

A hobby inspiring gift is a miniature greenhouse. Indoor planting and growing is as much fun as summertime gardening. This greenhouse (8 in.x11in.x9in.) is of clear plastic with special air vents and a trap door for caring for the plants. The equipment includes planting medium, chemical fertilizer and assorted flower seeds. (F. A. O. Schwarz—$5.)

Newton Wasn't the Only One Who Was Inspired By a Rosy Little Apple

THIS FALL'S CROP of rosy, satin-smooth apples has set Mrs. G. D. C., of Sterling, Va., to thinking about making good, old-fashioned apple butter.

DEAR ANNE:

Will you please print as soon as possible a recipe for apple butter, specifying the number of apples, amount of sugar and seasoning, such as liquid cloves, all-spice, and cinnamon. We always used the liquid at home and made it in an open kettle outdoors. I want to make about 10 gallons, using 50 or 60 pounds of sugar and would like to cover with paraffin. How many hours will it have to be cooked? We plan to use about 3 bushels of apples—Stayman Winesaps. Mrs. G. D. C., Route 2, Sterling, Va.

I haven't an apple butter recipe using liquid spices, Mrs. G. D. C., but can give you the following general instructions for making the butter with ground spice.

Pare, core and slice the apples. Use equal measures of fruit and either water or cider. (Cider gives extra good flavor.)

Cook until fruit is soft, stirring constantly. How long this will take depends on the mellowness of the apples. It's a good idea next to press the fruit through a sieve to take out all fibrous material, but you may be able to avoid this step if you are careful in coring the apples.

The quantity of sugar varies according to the tartness of the apples and your own taste. However, the usual quantity is half as much sugar as pulp. Add ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt to each gallon of butter. Boil rapidly and stir constantly to prevent burning. (If you know how many gallons your cooking utensil holds, it will help you in figuring measurements.)

As the butter cooks down and becomes thicker, reduce heat to prevent splattering. Add the spices—1 to 2 teaspoons mixed ground spice to each gallon of butter, depending on how strong a spice flavor you like. Cook the butter until no rim of liquid appears about the edge of the butter, when you test by pouring small quantity on a cold plate. Butter should be thick enough to spread well on bread.

While boiling hot, pour into sterilized containers and seal. Paraffin can be poured on top after butter cools, if desired. However, it isn't necessary if you use sterilized lids and jars and seal with rubber rings while hot.

DEAR ANNE:

I am invited to a golden wedding anniversary reception. Is a gift required? If so, would you name an appropriate one?

Daily Reader, Washington

Yes, gifts are usual on such an occasion. It needn't be an expensive one—not necessarily a solid gold plate, for instance! You can choose gold-colored linen, gilt picture frames, gold-trimmed china and glassware, something made of gold silk, wool or brocade, a piece of gold jewelry, gold pencil or something of the sort.

DEAR ANNE:

I bought some new furniture. One of the pieces of furniture is a table of that new, sort of white or light tan finish. I have two tables of dark walnut. What would you suggest to do to make them match my new table?

M. A. M., Washington

Your description of the finish doesn't give me much to go on. I take it the table is what is known as "blond," however. Best thing to do in this case, it seems to me, is simply to use blond paint over the old walnut finish. You'll need a couple of coats to hide the dark wood. I wouldn't advise trying to take off the old finish and bleach out the wood because it will be difficult—if not impossible—to get walnut light enough to go with your table.

GETTING IN THE MOOD for the first fall concert of the Georgetown Concert Group are Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt and Mrs. Bernard Burroughs, as they listen to recordings of last year's concerts. The opening program in the new series takes place Thursday at 8:15 p. m. in Western High School auditorium, with the Tichman-Budnevich clarinet and piano duo as featured artists. Mrs. Burroughs, wife of the new counselor at the British Embassy, is a recent addition to the concert committee and has been working on the membership drive

Tobé Says...

The Ever-Useful Lace Blouse Remains

I can't think of anything that is as perennially useful as a lace blouse, unless perhaps it is a lace dress!

The lace blouse has always been a top favorite to wear with dinner and evening skirts. But the great vogue for very dressy blouses with suits, gives us another use for lace blouses.

I like the new low-necked lace blouses that are so smart this year. One of my favorites in fine black Chantilly lace over pink chiffon has a low scoop neck with the scalloped edge of the lace forming the neckline and tiny little cap sleeves. Another is simpler but equally dressy in effect—with a plain, low-scoop neckline and long, tight-fitting sleeves.

Vassar Club Asks Book Donations For Spring Sale

The Vassar Club of Washington will hold its annual book sale in the spring of 1951, and is now beginning to collect books which will be sold at that time. Proceeds from the sale will benefit the club's scholarship fund.

The club is asking members and friends to donate boks. Any volumes of general and limited interest will be welcome. Poetry, art, history and children's books are particularly requested.

Arrangements can be made to have small or large donations picked up by calling Mrs. Christopher Squire at JAckson 4-1686.

Mrs. Truman Will Applaud Boston's Return

"Le Beau Charles" Munch, French conductor who came to the Boston Symphony Orchestra last season, returns to Constitution Hall with his men Thursday evening. Mrs. Truman, heading the list of boxholders, will be there to hear him. In the dress circle will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. William Crozier, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grew, Mrs. James Patton, Mrs. Matthew J. Whittall, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, and Mr. and Mrs. William Castle, who will have as their guests the former Ambassador of Poland and Mme. Ciechanowska.

From the diplomatic circle will come the Ambassador of New Zealand and Lady Berendsen, the Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin M. Elizalde; the Spanish Miliary Attache, Col. Angel G. de Mendoza, and the First Secretary of the Embassy of Uruguay, Dr. Jorge Barreiro.

The Chief of Staff of the United States Army, Gen. Joseph Lawton Collins, and Mrs. Collins will be guests in the Jouett Shouse box. Mrs. Philip L. Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, will occupy the Meyer box.

Mme. Munch hopes to make the trip from Boston to hear the concert, and George Judd, manager of the orchestra, will be there with a party of friends.

Other Washingtonians who have taken boxes are Mrs. Margaretta Stroup Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Campbell, Martin Braverman, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Henle, Mrs. Florence Keep, Judge and Mrs. George Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Snow and Mrs. Edwin M. Watson.

After their concert on Thursday evening, the Boston Symphony will return to Washington twice again this winter—on December 7, when Koussevitzky will conduct, and on February 13.

Double Chin Proves More About Posture Than Age

Sixth Day of Blanche's Beauty Program.

By Ann Lawrence

THAT FIRST indication of a double chin, like the first gray hair, is invariably resented by a woman as a sign of age. But the double chins don't necessarily prove anything about age. They are much more likely to prove something about your posture habits.

Blanche's chin and neckline had lost the firm contours of youth. With her special massage chart she would work to restore elasticity to the skin. But she had to work, too, on her posture—on the way she carried her head and shoulders, for slumping shoulders and a head drooping forward had left their mark on her chinline, just as much as had her age.

Special exercises for her neckline would start her off. Then she would add corrective posture calisthentics. Here's the routine to erase the double chin:

EXERCISE 1: Hold your head high and keep your shoulders stationary. Slowly pivot the head to one side as far as it will go. Don't tip or tilt it; just turn it. Return the head slowly to the front and repeat on the other side. Repeat the full exercise 10 times. Placing your hands on your shoulders will help remind you to hold them still as your head turns.

EXERCISE 2: Let your head fall forward, completely relaxed, but don't move your shoulders. Now lift the chin a little and push it as far forward as you can. Now forget about your chin and concentrate on the back of your neck. There are seven vertebrae of the cervical spine. Slowly raise the head and back and, as you do, think of pushing each one of these vertebrae back into a vertical position.

To make yourself more conscious of what you are doing, place a finger or a pencil at the base of your neck. Think of pushing back against it as you slowly move up each vertebrae. When the head is completely up and back, the chin is at right angles to the neck. Try to keep your head in this position all your waking moments—when you walk, sit or stand. Repeat 10 times.

EXERCISE 3: Push up with the back of your head. S-t-r-e-t-c-h it up. Don't lift your chin; keep it at a right angle to your neck. Now, by moving only your head, see how closely you can bring your ear to your shoulder. Do one side slowly; return head to upright position. Stretch up again and repeat on the other side. Repeat 10 times.

4 Drown in Cave When Rhone River Hits Flood Stage

PARIS, Nov. 12 (U.P.)—Four persons exploring an underground river drowned today when the waters rose suddenly and heavy rains lashed the Rhone River into a torrent threatening 1000 residents of the village of Vaulx-en-Velin.

Army engineers said the Rhone was rising at a rate of 4 inches an hour in the worst flood threat since 1928.

The four explorers were drowned near Montbeliard on the Swiss frontier. Seven men were trapped in a passageway of the unexplored "Hole of the Creuze" cave when the underground Creuze River rose suddenly in its narrow channel and blocked their retreat.

Rescue teams blasted a larger opening to let more water through and four bodies with two others near death were disgorged into the cavern where miners, divers and inhalator teams struggled by torchlight to reach the men. Rescue teams were still trying to reach the seventh member of the party. It was believed he might still be alive tonight.

Mother of Retired Red Cross Officer Dies

Mrs. Martha D. Fieser, 94, mother of James L. Fieser, retired national vice president of the American Red Cross, died yesterday in Warren, Ohio.

Fieser, who lives at 5009 Edgemoor la., Bethesda, left by plane immediately for Warren, where funeral services will be held Tuesday. Burial will be in Ravenna, Ohio.

Gerald Livingston Dies; Ex-Wall St. Official

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP).—Gerald Moncrieffe Livingston, 67-year-old former governor of the New York Stock Exchange, died last night.

Mr. Livingston, who formerly was president of the Westminster Kennel Club, also maintained a residence in New York City and owned a plantation at Quitman, Ga., where he had one of the largest kennels in the country.

Mr. Livingston suffered a heart attack Friday at the annual field trial meeting of the Labrador Retriever Club while watching one of his dogs work.

Alexander Diomedes, Ex-Greek Premier, Dies

ATHENS, Nov. 12 (AP).—Alexander Diomedes, 75, who was Premier of Greece when the long Communist rebellion was crushed in October, 1949, died last night after an operation for a kidney ailment.

He became premier on July 1, 1949, after the death of aged Premier Themistocles Sophoulis, and held the post until January 5, 1950, when his Populist-Liberal coalition cabinet collapsed because of a dispute over when to hold parliamentary elections.

He had been governor of the Greek National Bank for many years and had served in several cabinets as Finance Minister.

Mayor of Indianapolis Dies on 50th Birthday

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 12 (AP).—Albert (Al) G. Feeney, mayor of Indianapolis and center on the unknown Notre Dame football team that upset Army in 1913, collapsed and died of a heart attack today, his fifty-eighth birthday.

The handsome former athlete, the Indiana capital's most eligible bachelor, slumped and died almost instantly after speaking at the Daughters of Isabella annual communion breakfast.

He will be succeeded as mayor by Phillip L. Bayt, jr., city controller.

LEGAL NOTICE 4

A. DEVITT VANECH, Assistant Attorney General; CHARLES M. IRELAN, Attorney, Lands Division, Department of Justice.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT Court for the District of Columbia. In the matter of the acquisition of Lot 57 in Square 753 in the District of Columbia. District Court, Docket No. 3259. Order for surrender of possession and citation to respondents. Upon consideration of the petition of the United States of America and the declaration of taking filed herein on the 8th day of November, 1950, by Charles M. Irelan, Attorney, Lands Division, Department of Justice, acting under the instructions of the Attorney General of the United States at the request of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, seeking the condemnation of Lot 57 in Square 753 in the District of Columbia, as more particularly described in the petition for condemnation and declaration of taking filed herein for the public use, that is to say, for the suitable development of the park, parkway and playground system of the National Capital; and it appearing to the court that the public purpose for which the land in this proceeding is to be acquired requires that the United States have possession of the above land and premises forthwith, it is by the court this 8th day of November, 1950, adjudged and ordered that J. Ninian Beall, trustee, Continental Building, 15th and K Streets NW.; Rixey O. Belt, trustee, Union Trust Building, 15th and H Streets NW.; Stanley T. Ewell, trustee, 1415 K Street NW.; Cyrus E. Houston, 623 2nd Street NE.; Louise Houston, 623 2nd Street NE.; Walter Miller, trustee, 1415 K Street NW.; Third Realty Corporation, c/o Norman Bernstein, 1415 K Street NW.; all the foregoing of the City of Washington, District of Columbia, being the parties named in said petition, and in the event that any of the foregoing persons is deceased, the heirs, alienees and devisees of such person; and all persons having or claiming to have any right, title, interest or estate in the land hereinbefore described or to be entitled to compensation in respect of the taking of the same for public use, and all persons occupying or in possession of the same be, and they are hereby, required to surrender possession of the land above described to the United States of America on the 15TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1950. And it is further adjudged and ordered that said parties be, and they are hereby, required, cited and admonished to appear in this court on the FOURTH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1950, at 10 o'clock a. m., to answer this petition and make claim for the compensation to which they deem themselves entitled; provided, however, that it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published once a week for three consecutive weeks in The Washington Post, a newspaper of general circulation published in the District of Columbia, and also once a week for three consecutive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter, the first of said publications to be not later than the 13th day of November, 1950; and it is further ordered that a copy of this order be served before the return day hereof by the United States Marshal for the District of Columbia, or his deputy, upon the above-named persons and corporation. JENNINGS BAILEY, Judge. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) HARRY M. HULL, Clerk. By H. B. DERTZBAUGH, Deputy Clerk. Nov.13,20,27

SALESMEN

Are you fed up with cut-throat competition, high pressure selling, traveling, big operating expenses, business investments, straight canvassing and seasonal fluctuating incomes? Would you like to represent a 96-year-old national concern, one of the largest, most progressive in its field? Would you enjoy a steady repeat all-season business, with better than average earnings and a pleasant dignified 8-hour day? Do you want opportunity for advancement? This is not windows, books, magazines, cookware, roofing, insulation, brushes, insurance, cleaners, upholstery or appliances. If you are married, own a car, and in good health, age 25 to 50.

Crosby Says Video Gave Dewey a Lift

By John Crosby

WELL, GOV. THOMAS E. DEWEY won re-election handily in spite of the Hanley letter, and television certainly helped. Just how much it helped, no one will ever know. But no one can dispute that Dewey is the first man to exploit television politically, the first candidate to understand — he appears to have stumbled on this by accident—how to use television properly.

Crosby

There has been a lot of talk about television's effect on political candidates almost since the birth of the medium. A great many politicians have employed television as if it were radio. They stood in front of a microphone and delivered a speech as mellifluously as possible, hoping that the pancake makeup would conceal their double chins.

DEWEY threw the script away. He answered questions, as it were, from the floor—the floor being a dozen street corners all over the state of New York. He spoke extemporaneously; he moved from spot to spot, picking up State reports and documents; he sat on the edge of his desk (never once did he sit behind the desk); he scratched his head, put his glasses on, took them off, wiped them; he posed for photographs and he introduced his wife when some one wanted a look at her. Essentially, though, he answered questions—hundreds of them—questions about State taxes, housing, veterans benefits, hospitals, and a dozen other complex questions. He answered them in awe-inspiring detail, spouting figures and facts without hesitation, and rarely—except in obvious slips of the tongue—making mistakes.

This form of campaigning had a two-fold effect. First, it humanized Dewey as he had never been humanized before. Dewey will never exactly compete with Arthur Godfrey in charm, but it certainly gave the voters the most intimate glimpse of Tom Dewey they'd ever had. Secondly and more importantly, it eliminated the normal pomposities of political rhetoric. A man thinking on his feet is likely to blurt out the truth rather than the well-rounded, wind-filled phrase.

IN ANY CASE, the old-fashioned campaign speech with a man reading from a script in front of a hall full of people is a dead form of oratory on television. (The Democrats did it on several occasions.) The candidate is in the voter's living room and the voter doesn't want oratory. It had also better be done in short takes. Dewey's 18-hour marathon on Monday and his other 14 local television appearances were mostly done in 15-minute segments.

In so far as the voter is concerned, the form of campaigning has its pitfalls, too. Many of the questions hurled at Dewey seemed rigged; all of them were certainly screened; the embarrassing ones were probably eliminated. Television is not entirely a substitute for the old town meeting. Just the same, a television personality—and Dewey is not necessarily the ideal one—is likely to be the politician of the future. The change on the whole is for the best.

Records Set by Westinghouse

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Nov. 12 (AP).—J. H. Ashbaugh, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric Appliance division of the Westinghouse Electric Corp., today announced new production and sales records.

He said plants here and in Springfield, Mass., produced 3,297,752 electric refrigerators and stoves and total sales ran 180 million dollars so far this year. Production was 70 percent higher than during the same period in 1949, he said.

Some Second Thoughts About Moving Into A New 'Home'

The Washington Post's news department has now moved into our beautiful new building at 1515 L st. nw.

The structure on "Post Square" is all but deserted—shunted aside, as it were, by a modernistic assemblage of glass, steel, concrete and marble.

A few of the paper's many departments are still waiting for the moving vans. But most are gone. The deafening roar of presses has been stilled, and the quiet of the empty city room is positively frightening. The printers, the stereotypers, the mailers, the pressmen and the journalists have already moved to L st. And the rest of the men and women whose brains and brawn put the paper to bed each night will be along shortly.

In the new building, they'll no longer have to run up and down several flights of stairs whenever the lone elevator decides to go Democratic. The new elevators are modern—and numerous. They'll no longer have to swelter in summer. The new plant is completely air-conditioned.

In short, I guess we're pretty lucky to be working in a structure that's fitted with every convenience known to modern builders. And that ought to make us very happy.

But for some perverse reason, I hate to leave the old place—like some folks hate to part with a friendly rocking chair, or a comfortable pair of old shoes.

I'm going to miss that sweltering heat, believe it or not . . . the low rumble of the presses that told us when the "bulldog" had finally started to roll . . . the telephone numbers scrawled on the composing room wall . . . the pretty-girl calendars in the engraving department . . . the hopeless clutter of Herblock's cubbyhole . . . the rattle and bang of the exposed pneumatic tube lines . . . the crews of workmen forever tearing down or putting up partitions in an effort to squeeze out "just a little more room" to house the expanded activities of a growing institution.

But most of all, I think, I'm going to miss seeing Chairman of the Board Eugene Meyer pass up the slow-poke elevator to go bounding up the stairs with the vigor of a youth.

"He's 75," I used to lecture myself, "and if he can walk up, so can you." It was just about the only exercise I ever got. Now, I suppose, I'll have to get serious about golf again.

MONEY'S WORTH

"Pepconian," Pepco's house organ, wonders whether it has uncovered an all-time economy record.

The electric people have heard about a light bulb which Herbert Harris of 1828 4th st. nw., installed 39 years ago, when he first moved into his house.

The bulb was in daily use during all those years, and was sometimes left on all night—yet it wasn't until just the other day that it finally burned out.

Pepco wonders whether anybody can top that record for longevity. And all I can say is that it's a good thing all light bulbs don't last that long, or the manufacturers thereof would be eating in Salvation Army soup kitchens.

One of the nicest things about this job of mine is that occasionally I get a chance to write an item like this one.

In a recent column I mentioned that two local groups were hoping that somebody would donate pianos for the use of youngsters. Mrs. Rose Sutin of 617 Vale st., Chevy Chase, Md., wanted one for the Chevy Chase Elementary School, and Kenneth J. Lynch was trying to get one for the recreation center recently established by Bethesda-Chevy Chase Post No. 105 of the American Legion.

Mrs. M. M. McNutt of 2510 41st st. nw. immediately called to report that she had a piano which she'd give to either group. It went to the Legionnaires, because Chula Johnson of 2716 31st st. se. had already responded to the plea of the Chevy Chase school children.

As I may have mentioned once or twice (or was it a hundred times) before: People are nicer than anybody.

Truman and Leaders in Early Row

By Drew Pearson

Despite the slim Democratic margin in the new Congress, a little personal friction cropped up between the President and his congressional leaders one day after election over the question of calling Congress back before Thanksgiving.

Barkley

Vice President Barkley even went so far as to serve notice that he would ignore any early call of Congress and stay home. This notice was served on the President through Senate Secretary Les Biffle, who talked to Barkley at his home in Paducah, Ky., then to Truman on the Presidential yacht Williamsburg.

Other Senate leaders — Majority Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois and Republican leader Ken Wherry of Nebraska—also passed word through Biffle that they were dead set against an early session. This could be the beginning of a serious feud between the President and Congress.

The President, however, was noncommittal. All he told Biffle was that he wanted to talk the matter over personally with the leaders before making his decision.

The message which Barkley sent was that he needed a vacation and intended to take it, no matter what Truman decided. The Vice President complained that he was worn out from his whirlwind campaign tour, which included three to five speeches daily and a phenomenal windup of 14 speeches on the day before election.

Wherry, phoning Biffle from his home in Pawnee City, Nebr., also reported that he expected to take a vacation. Another anxious call came from Senator Dennis Chavez, New Mexico Democrat, who said he was planning a trip through Central America to inspect the Pan-American highway and didn't want Congress called back early.

Douglas to Resign?

President Truman and Chief Justice Fred Vinson talked like Dutch uncles to restless Justice William O. Douglas the other day when he told them he wanted to resign from the Supreme Court.

Vinson, who feels keenly about the court's prestige, and also has a high regard for the sharp and original mind of Douglas, said severely, "I think it would be improper for you to resign and go into law for at least two years."

Then, in a kindlier vein, the owl-eyed Kentuckian added: "Besides, Bill, the court really needs your point of view. The whole country would suffer if you resigned."

When Justice Douglas went to the White House, Mr. Truman was tipped off in advance by the Chief Justice that Douglas wanted to resign. So the President was ready for him.

"The biggest problem I have is to get good people to come into Washington," he told Douglas. "It's pretty discouraging. If you resigned, my job would be a lot harder. We need you on the court."

NOTE—Columbia University has sounded out Douglas about becoming General Eisenhower's successor after January 1. Douglas has also toyed with the idea of going into private law practice on his own.

Russian Jets

Russian MIG-15 jets are playing a deadly game of cat-and-mouse across the Manchurian border.

Knowing that Manchuria is out-of-bounds for Americans, Red pilots climb to dizzy altitudes, carefully staying inside Chinese territory—then pounce upon unsuspecting American patrols just across the border. In the same dive, the Russian jets swoop back to the safety of Manchuria before American pilots can give chase.

Under strict orders not to cross the Manchurian boundary, the Americans try to lure the marauding jets into their gunsights, but seldom get more than a few seconds crack at them.

Senatorial Looks

A stooped, gray-haired man was slowly pushing his tray along the counter of the Senate cafeteria. Carefully he stopped, looked over all the dishes, then selected one.

Behind him, a young, blonde stenographer grew impatient, purposely banged her tray against his tray.

The girl looked over the mild little man and replied skeptically: "He doesn't look like one."

Navy-Air Feud Cools

Just as another full-scale Navy-Air Force feud was about to pop off, top admirals and generals got together secretly the other day and swore not to knife each other any more.

The secret conference was held between wise Adm. Forrest Sherman, chief of naval operations, and astute General Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, though afterward their press chiefs, Rear Adm. Robert Hickey and Brig. Gen. Sory Smith, also shook on it.

Specifically, they agreed not to criticize each other's weapons nor to leak news stories undermining each other.
